SCHNEIDER CUP FOR SEAPLANES GOES TO BRITISH AIR PILOT

Greatest Crowd At Lido For Famous Air Events

LIDO, Venice, Sept. 26.—Lieutenant Webster of Great Britain, won the Schneider cup race for seaplanes today.

LIDO, Venice, Sept. 26.—Witnessed by the greatest throng that ever crowded its way into this ancient city of the Doges, the Schneider cup racers took their tiny seaplanes into the air at 2:30 o'clock today in competition for the Schneider cup, emblematic of world speed supremacy.

The first to start was Lieutenant Kinkead, British contestant. His Gloster-Napier machine flashed across the starting line at exactly 2:30 o'clock, the time officially set for the start of the races. Kinkead's time for the first lap over the thirty-mile triangular course opposite Lido Beach was 267 miles per hour.

The second race to start was the Italian De Bernardi, winner of last year's event at Norfolk, Va. when the Italian won their first leg on the cup.

The Italian's red Macchi racer roared past the judge's stand, leaving a trail of black smoke on the water.

The other contestants followed in rapid succession.

Bad luck immediately beset the Italian flyers. Lieutenant Ferrarini was unable to complete the first lap, and returned to the hangar. De Bernardi made a forced landing after completing the second lap leaving a single Italian contestant in the race.

Then misfortune tagged the first of the British flyers, Lieutenant S. M. Kinkead. He was forced down at the end of the sixth lap by engine trouble, after having attained the greatest speed of any of the racers. Kinkead's best time was an average of 290 miles per hour for one lap.

The terrific speed caused the exhaust flames to turn the fuselage of his plane completely black.

Kinkead's withdrawal left two contestants still in the race, one British and one Italian.

RUTH ELDER FLIGHT POSTPONED AGAIN; SET FOR WEDNESDAY

Miss Grayson Will Fly To Maine To Plan Take Off

CURTIS FIELD, N. Y., Sept. 26.—The proposed New York-to-Paris flight of Ruth Elder, Florida beauty contest winner, today was postponed until Wednesday because of unfavorable weather conditions.

Miss Elder and her navigator, Captain George Haldeman, made a flight over New York yesterday, but Captain Haldeman explained today that it was just a pleasure trip, as the plane—a Stinson-Detroler named "The American Girl"—had already been placed in perfect condition for the trans Atlantic hop and had been thoroughly tested. He said, however, that Wednesday was the first day he would consider for a start to Paris because of a low pressure area over the Atlantic.

COLD WEATHER COMING

A much lower temperature followed by frost, was due to arrive here late Monday afternoon, according to weather forecasts received at the County Farm Bureau offices, Monday morning, by J. R. Kimber, county agent.

An extensive high pressure area with a much lower temperature in the northwest was reported in the morning. This condition indicates that this part of the state will be visited by cooler weather within a few hours, Mr. Kimber said.

The first snow of the season was reported from Denver, Colo., Sunday. The snow was accompanied by near freezing temperatures. Snow is also said to have fallen at Newcastle, Wyo., the same day, accompanied by freezing temperatures. Snow and rain fell during the day and came on the heels of Saturday, one of the hottest days of late summer in Wyoming.

The cold wave emanating from the west, is thought to be headed in this direction.

EXPECT NEW ARREST AS INVESTIGATION OF MURDER HASTENS

Police Find Arsenal In Search Of Suspect's Home

HAMMONTON, N. J., Sept. 26.—With an arrest predicted within the next thirty-six hours, the investigation into the murder of Dr. William Lillendahl, 72-year-old physician whose wife is held as a material witness, moved forward with rapidity today.

Principal attention focused on the finding of a "veritable arsenal" in the home of Willis Beach, 52-year-old poultryman who has confessed during clandestine notes to the physician's forty-year-old widow, Mrs. Margaret Lillendahl. The letters were addressed to "Peggy Anderson."

Armed with a search warrant, the police ransacked Beach's home, acting on the expressed conviction of Prosecutor Louis Repetto that the poultry dealer had important knowledge as to the crime which he was concealing from the authorities. They found two pistols, both of 32 caliber, and a number of shot guns and rifles.

Soon after Lillendahl was found shot to death in his automobile on a little-used byway near here, investigators stated the murder had been committed with a revolver of 32 caliber. The weapons found in Beach's home were to be compared today with the bullets taken from the slain physician's body.

Beach's son, Roy, who is thirty-four, claimed ownership of all the guns, explaining he kept the revolvers to protect the home from burglars, and the rifles and shotguns because of his hunting activities. He also told the investigators, according to Repetto, that his father had burned a large quantity of papers and letters when the murder probe was first begun.

Mrs. Lillendahl who claims that her husband was murdered by two negroes when he attempted to shield her from attack, was to be taken to the murder scene today to re-enact the crime.

INVESTIGATE DEATH

CINCINNATI, O., Sept. 26.—An examination of the body of Mrs. Helen Diehn, 26, was to be made by county authorities here today, in an effort to determine the cause of her death, believed to have resulted from an overdose of a sleeping powder. Police were holding for investigation Stanley Smith, who lives in adjoining apartment, who called authorities, when he said, he found the woman lying unconscious in her room.

ATTEMPT TO BLAST YANKS' TRAIN

BELIEVE RADICALS DYNAMITED TRACKS OF LEGION SPECIAL

Delay In Schedule Saves Americans—Probe Started

NICE, France, Sept. 26.—A huge sign, bearing the inscription "Vivent Sacco and Vanzetti," furnished the chief clue today in the police investigation into the attempted derailment of special trains bearing members of the American Legion on their "good-will tour" of Europe.

First attempt occurred near the Golfe Juan station on the Riviera. Five minutes before the Paris express, carrying hundreds of Legionnaires on the first leg of their tour of amity and friendship through many countries of Europe, was scheduled to pass the spot, a tremendous explosion ripped loose a two-foot section of the track and tore a deep hole in the roadbed.

The night express, however, was fourteen minutes late, and the break was discovered in time to halt the train and route it over a different line to Nice.

Several hours after the explosion, railroad employees found two great boulders and a pile of sticks and sand on the tracks at Cap Dail, on the main line between Nice and Monte Carlo. In this instance, the tracks were cleared before any damage was done.

Military police dispatched to guard the line immediately after the first bombing, found the Sacco-Vanzetti sign near the spot where the explosion occurred. The police advanced the belief that the attempted outrages were in the nature of a radical "protest" against the reception accorded the Legionnaires in Paris. They are connected with recent outrages, attributed to anarchist or Communist plotters, which have shaken the Riviera country.

An extensive investigation was immediately begun by the police, and efforts made to trace the perpetrators of the near outrage through the lettering on the sign. All trains were re-routed over different lines following the discovery of the plot, and the legion visitors placed under a heavy guard. They were not molested, however, after their arrival in Nice, participating in a parade and other ceremonies with no untoward demonstration marred the proceedings.

AMERICAN CHARGED WITH PIRACY AFTER RUM SHIP CAPTURE

British Arrest Man Who Confiscated Booze For Himself

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—Charles H. Nestle, an American, faces charges of piracy on the high seas because of alleged participation in the capture of a rum runner, the state department has been informed by the consul at Nassau, in the British Bahamas.

A magistrate has been sent to Nestle by the governor of the islands to give him a hearing on the charges.

It is alleged that Nestle, though not a member of the United States Coast Guard, helped to capture a rum smuggler, an American, and appropriated part of the runner's cargo. Reports from Nassau said Nestle admitted being on the coast guard vessel. It was said that part of the liquor was found in Nestle's possession.

A full investigation of the case has been ordered by the state department and the coast guard.

Nestle is a former American prohibition agent. He was arrested in a small boat off Bimini, where he fled from Savannah, Ga. British authorities reported that the capture was made within three miles of the shore, off Gun Key, a concentration point for the rum runners.

LEAGUE OF NATIONS ASSEMBLY PAVES WAY FOR DISARMAMENT

Adjusts Differences Between Great Britain, France And Germany—Favors Continued Arbitration

GENEVA, Switzerland, Sept. 26.—The League of Nations' assembly by unanimous vote, today adjusted the outstanding differences between Great Britain, France and Germany on the questions of disarmament and national security, and paved the way for resumption of the work toward international disarmament, which was virtually discontinued after the breakup of the Tripartite Naval Armament Limitation Conference in June.

The assembly unanimously adopted resolutions recommending progressive development of arbitration through particular and collective agreements, and recommended speeding up the work of the preparatory disarmament conference to permit the calling of a general disarmament conference before next September.

Another resolution was adopted recommending the appointment of a special committee to study the question of security simultaneously with that of disarmament, thus meeting with the French demand that the two questions be jointly considered and discussed.

This resolution recommended that members of the League draft themselves, and recommended that the council of the League require each member to make known the extent of military aid that would be forthcoming in any particular armed conflict.

The assembly refused to accept the suggestion of Fridtjof Nansen, noted Norwegian explorer, who has

CAPTAIN JOHN POST DIES FROM WOUNDS IN SATURDAY FIGHT

Negro Slayer Taken From Dayton—Police On Extra Shifts

DAYTON, O., Sept. 26.—City police began working twelve hour shifts here at 7 a. m., today, instead of the usual eight hour shift, to insure a better patrol of the city, following the death of Police Captain John C. Post, 46, who died Sunday after a pistol duel with Otis Bridges, negro, who was wounded. Bridges was removed to St. Francis Hospital, Columbus, Sunday to insure his safety. Captain Post was shot Saturday afternoon.

Feeling in Dayton is said to be high as Post's death is the second in the police department to be charged against negroes in the past week.

Roy Freeman, negro, who is under indictment for the first degree murder of Patrolman William C. Horn, was removed to the Franklin County Jail at Columbus, for safekeeping until his trial which is set for October 10. Horn was shot September 18.

Police are also seeking two negroes, who are said to have fatally shot Alfred Knight, a Baltimore and Ohio Railroad detective on September 15.

Bridges also shot two other policemen, Edward A. Frick and V. J. Kunz, who will probably recover. The officers were shot when they visited Bridges' home Saturday to arrest him after he had attempted to shoot a neighbor.

Patrolman C. C. Bowen, apparently crazed over the shooting of his superior officer, crept into the hospital ward where the slayer was lying Saturday night, and fired two shots at Bridges.

However, the revolver was loaded with blanks, as the officer had taken part in an imaginary bank holdup at the fairgrounds, a feature of Police and Firemen's field day exercises, Saturday, and had forgotten to remove the cartridges. The officer was reported last night to be in a Dayton hospital, suffering from a nervous breakdown.

Bridges has little chance to recover from his wounds, it is said, and his death is expected hourly. His most serious wound is in the neck, where a bullet pierced the windpipe. Bullets also struck him on the left hip and left arm.

Captain Post was appointed on the police force January 5, 1903 and became a sergeant October 4, 1918. He served in this capacity until October 1, 1925, when he was appointed captain.

Funeral services will be held at the Grace Methodist Episcopal Church at 2:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon in charge of the Rev. C. W. Brashers. Burial will be made in Memorial Park Cemetery. The body will lie in state at the church and his death is expected hourly.

MASKED MEN SOUGHT AFTER DARING HOLD UP SATURDAY NIGHT

Bandits Escape In Auto—Fred Randall Is Victim

Police are looking for an old model touring car and two white men who held up Fred G. Randall, 32, of 33 Center St., attendant at The Carroll-Binder Co., filling station, N. Detroit St., at Fairground Ave., at 9:30 o'clock Saturday night and escaped with $38 from the cash register.

Meager descriptions of the masked bandits and reports that the auto in which they made their escape was either an old Overland or an old Grant touring car, painted red and without a top, furnished the only clues on which police were basing their search Monday.

Randall was alone in the filling station when the bandits entered a rear door. He had his back turned to the rear entrance and thought a friend was attempting a joke when one of the bandits ordered, "stick 'em up." He turned to look into the barrel of a pistol in the hand of one of the bandits and the order was repeated.

Randall opened the cash register at their command and permitted one of the bandits to scoop up cash in the drawer. The bandits then forced the attendant to stand in a corner as they retreated through the rear door and made their way to their auto, which had been parked on King St. Police learned they drove south on King St. in making their escape.

Randall called police from a telephone in the neighborhood and Patrolman Craig and Robinson rounded up five suspects shortly after the hold-up. All were later released. Randall described one of the bandits as tall and thin while the other was short and of heavier build. Both had their features behind red bandanna handkerchiefs tied across the lower part of their faces. Randall was unarmed and only one of the bandits showed a pistol.

Police were told by a boy in the neighborhood that he saw the two men park their car on King St. before the robbery and make their way through empty lots back of the filling station to the rear of the station. He saw them enter and later watched them return to the auto and drive away. Police also learned that two men in an auto answering the description of the bandit car were seen driving slowly on N. Detroit St., shortly before noon Saturday.

The bandits were strangers here and notified points of adjoining cities to aid them in the search.

Randall has been employed by The Carroll-Binder Co. four months but has only been located at the N. Detroit St. station a few weeks, it being only recently purchased by The Carroll-Binder Co. It was Xenia's first filling station hold-up, police say.

LEGIONNAIRES ARE DESERTING PARIS

PARIS, Sept. 26.—Paris returned to normalcy today. The few thousand members of the American Legion remaining in Paris have been reduced to the status of ordinary tourists. They are spending their time in sight-seeing and shopping without the obligation of attending receptions, meetings and banquets.

Legion caps still dot the boulevards and the cafes, but so far as the French government is concerned, the pilgrimage is over. Most of the Legionnaires have either departed for home or left for other points in Europe on a "good-will tour."

Workmen today began tearing down the huge "welcome" sign and other decorations placed in honor of the visiting Legionnaires a week ago.

"BIRTHDAY TEA" IS HELD BY JOINT SOCIETIES.

The auditorium of the First United Presbyterian Church, was the scene of an unusually pleasant occasion Friday, when the Woman's Missionary Society and the Young Ladies' Missionary Society held a joint "birthday tea" with the Second Church W. M. S. as guests, the object being to celebrate the fortieth anniversary of the Woman's Missionary Magazine, edited in this city.

The church was beautifully decorated and the entire affair was delightful. Mrs. E. C. Moorman presided and Mrs. R. H. Nash had charge of the devotional service. Her topic was a "World-wide Prayer," which she and several assistants ably handled in prayers and praises. Mrs. Moorman presented a poem as a tribute to Mrs. J. P. White, editor and Mrs. Fannie Moore, treasurer of the magazine. This exercise closed with a duet by Mrs. W. J. Cherry and Miss Helen Reed, using part of the ninety-second Psalm and poem.

Mrs. White extended cordial greetings to the Second Church, to which Mrs. Moore responded. The main feature of the meeting was a program, composed by Mrs. White and presented at the Woman's General Missionary Society Convention at Pittsburgh, Kan., June 28, 1927.

A pageant portraying the forty years of the history of The Woman's Missionary Magazine was given by twenty-three women and girls. Four epochs of ten years each set forth the beginnings, the enlargement, the steps of progress and the future outlook.

Miss Marjorie Street at the organ furnished a musical accompaniment. As the characters for each epoch appeared, there came also women bearing posters, on which were the names of the editorial committee for that period. The women who have served on this committee during forty years were Mrs. W. C. Hutchison, Mrs. J. F. Patterson, Miss Sallie McDowell, Mrs. J. G. Carson, Mrs. T. L. Magruder, Mrs. S. S. Wilson, Mrs. S. M. Kelso, Mrs. J. B. Caruthers, Mrs. H. C. Dean, Miss Elmore Collins, Mrs. George M. Flagg and present committee, Mrs. Fannie Moore and Mrs. John P. White.

Mrs. T. L. Magruder, Mrs. J. B. Caruthers, Miss Elmore Collins, Mrs. Fannie Moore and Mrs. John P. White carried their own posters. Miss Anita Cherry, as the herald, announced each epoch. Mrs. J. P. Lytle as the Women's General Missionary Society, Mrs. Frank Jackson, as the Spirit of Conservatism and Mrs. C. S. Frazer as the Spirit of Progress, carried on a discussion, setting forth the need for a missionary magazine, the difficulties along the way, the successes of the undertaking and the hopes for the future.

Those representing the magazine were 1887-1897, Miss Mary Waddle; 1897-1907, Miss Emily Dean; 1907-1917, Mrs. John McCalmont; 1917-1927, Mrs. Austin Patterson.

Refreshments, which was beautifully decorated with flowers with a color scheme of green and white. A large birthday cake with forty candles occupied the center of the room.

An Outline Of Fashion

Being A Review—In Story And Picture—Of Women's Styles During The Last Hundred Years

This is the first of a series of six articles on the "Outline of Fashion," as depicted by Mme. Lisbeth, fashion expert for Central Press and The Evening Gazette. The series covers completely the style trends of the last hundred years, the first installment, below, dealing with the "lego-mutton" era—1827 to 1837.

By MME. LISBETH
NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—A century ago, in the year 1827, lego-mutton sleeves, wide, flaring skirts an inch from the ground, huge cartwheel hats with nodding plumes and floating streamers marked the day's fashions.

The period from 1827 to 1837 might be called the "lego-mutton" era. Milady moved softly on little beehive slippers. She was devastatingly feminine as she swished along with her silken skirts and innumerable petticoats.

Somewhat Inconvenient
Records at the Arnold Constable Co. Shop, Fifth Ave. New York, which recently celebrated its centenary, show that department store aisles had to be widened to allow the lady of the day to pass down them.

Carriage dresses, opera dresses, dinner party gowns, walking and evening dresses, all were marked by the lego-mutton sleeve, long, bustling skirt, broad shoulders and cramped waistline.

The hats were huge cartwheels, raised at the side, ornamented with mounds of ribbon, plumes and flowers with long ribbon streamers depending from them.

In 1830 the shoulder began sloping, the waistline dropped to normal position and was belted, the skirt was raised a bit above the ankles.

Waist was Wasplike
Five years later the shoulder line was many inches below the normal position, and the voluminous sleeve was gathered fully at the shoulder and again at the wrist, more like a bishop than a lego-mutton.

The pulled-in waist seemed wasplike in contrast with the sleeves and full gathered skirt, which was a bare inch from the ground.

The small, poke-bonnet, the brim high in front and worn with tied or floating streamers and veil was the daytime hat, while the head-dress for evening was often a turban.

Victoria ascended the throne of England in 1837, and with the famous Victoria came the crinoline into vogue.

Next: The "Crinoline Age."

CAVES OF WICKEDNESS POINTED OUT BY DR. BIEDERWOLF HERE

"Men are hiding today in man-made caves. There are more religious-isms and spasms today than ever in history. God's judgment will rise like the Jordan and all trusting in them shall perish."

This was the declaration of Dr. W. E. Biederwolf, evangelist at the First M. E. Church, when he preached on "Caves of Wickedness" Sunday night. He told how the Jordan River rising in the Lebanon Mountains, flows rapidly down through the valleys of Palestine, washing its way through the rocky ridges. During the rainy season the water rises higher and higher and fills the caves washed out in the banks. The wild beasts, seeking refuge from one cave to the other, always going higher and at last run into the highest cave but the waters, rising still higher, fill the cavern and they perish.

"The first cave is Infidelity," said the speaker. "I don't see how an infidel can be an honest man. He says he is hunting light, but he reads no book that will bring light—only more infidel books, books filled with more darkness. What good has infidelity ever done? It has never healed a wounded heart, never whispered peace to the troubled, never shed a ray of light into a darkened soul. It is no good in life and knocks you in death."

"The second cave into which men flee is Unitarianism, but there is no salvation there. It denies the Virgin Birth of Jesus Christ and you might just as well cut the life and ascension of Christ—one is just as credible as the other. To deny the Virgin Birth of Jesus makes an impostor of Christ. I would sooner throw the whole Bible into the gutter and take my chance with the world."

"The third cave is Morality or

Good Works. It is lots better to be moral than immoral but it cannot redeem a soul from sin. You can never work your way into heaven. You might as well expect to push a trolley car up a hill by blowing against the front window from the inside as to expect to deserve a place in heaven by more earthly goodness. No deed of heroism or patriotism can atone for a rotten life. If you could be saved by keeping the law you must be absolutely perfect. Where can you find such a man?"

"Even if you could live a perfect life from this time, how about the sins of the past. Who will pay the penalty? There is no other safe retreat than Jesus' blood and righteousness."

The church was filled for the service. The winners of the "beauty show" of the men's meeting, the father and son who most resembled each other, John and Raymond Geger, were presented a book "The Man God Tried to Kill," photographed by the author, Dr. Biederwolf. A special number was given by eight young women from the O. S. and S. O. Home.

A large crowd attended the men's meeting Sunday afternoon when Dr. Biederwolf preached on "The White Life." A feature of the afternoon was the singing of the men's chorus and quartet.

What Dr. Caldwell Learned in 47 Years Practice

J. B. Caldwell M.D.
AT AGE 83

Dr. Caldwell watched the results of constipation for 47 years, and believed that no matter how careful people are of their health, diet and exercise, constipation will occur from time to time regardless of how much one tries to avoid it. Of next importance, then, is how to treat it when it comes. Dr. Caldwell always was in favor of getting as close to nature as possible, hence his remedy for constipation, known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a mild vegetable compound. It can not harm the most delicate system and is not a habit forming preparation. Syrup Pepsin is pleasant-tasting, and youngsters love it. It does not gripe. Thousands of mothers have written us to that effect.

Dr. Caldwell did not approve of drastic physics and purges. He did not believe they were good for human beings to put into their system. In a practice of 47 years he never saw any reason for their use when a medicine like Syrup Pepsin will empty the bowels just as promptly, more cleanly and gently, without griping and harm to the system.

Keep free from constipation! It robs your strength, hardens your arteries and brings on premature old age. Do not let a day go by without a bowel movement. Do not sit and hope, but go to a druggist and get one of the generous bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Take the proper dose that night and by morning you will feel like a different person. Use Syrup Pepsin for yourself and members of the family in constipation, biliousness, sour and crampy stomach, bad breath, no appetite, headaches, and to break up fevers and colds. Always have a bottle in the house, and observe these three rules of health: Keep the head cool, the feet warm, the bowels open.

We would be glad to have you prove at our expense how much Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin can mean to you and yours. Just write "Syrup Pepsin," Monticello, Illinois, and we will send you prepaid a FREE SAMPLE BOTTLE.

DELAY REQUISITION HEARING TO RETURN XENIA TO INDIANA

COLUMBUS, Sept. 26.—Because of the absence of Indiana authorities, a hearing scheduled to be held at the office of Governor Victor Marshall, Xenia, as counsel, submitted evidence to Governor Donahoe today in support of their contention that Indiana authorities are not acting in good faith in seeking return of James to Indiana.

They charged that the real purpose of the plan to get James back to the Hoosier State is to settle a claim alleged to be held by a former employer against James.

AUTOISTS HURT IN TRIPLE ACCIDENT

Charles Callahan, Thrd and West Sts., this city, had his left arm broken and August Onley, same address, escaped injury, in an auto accident near Washington, C. H., Sunday morning.

The machine in which they were riding, driven by Onley, collided head-on with a machine occupied by a family named Gary, from Dayton. None of the Dayton party was injured but Jean Gary, 9, was standing in the road, after the accident, and was struck by a third machine and both her legs were broken. The car that struck the child was reported to have been driven by a Dr. Nelson from Xenia, but no one by that name is listed in the Xenia directory and the identity of the driver could not be learned here.

IMPROVE MARKETING

Livestock co-operatives, affiliated with the farm bureaus of Ohio last week started on an intensive campaign of improving co-operative marketing and purchasing service, and of telling the story of those services to additional producers of livestock, according to word received at the offices of the Greene County Farm Bureau from the offices of the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation.

The campaign is being conducted through the field service department of the farm bureau organization.

"The building of the co-operative marketing system in Ohio to its present status has taken nearly ten years," said F. G. Ketner, the Federation's director of livestock marketing in discussing the campaign. "Only a small percentage of the producers of livestock in the state realize the efficiency and breadth of service offered through the co-operative system. Thousands of livestock producers have helped to build up the machinery through which more than $15,000,000 worth of stock went to market last year from local stations in Ohio."

To the local co-operative marketing work has been added farm representation, through farmer-owned commission firms on all the important markets to which Ohio livestock moves, according to Ketner's statement. Marketing work was further improved by the establishment of an order buying agency which last year sold twenty-two of every hundred co-operatively marketed hogs directly to packers from country points, he says.

"Only this year have we perfected the system of supplying Ohio livestock men with feeder livestock for their feed lots," says Mr. Ketner. Contact with nearly every source of supply brings fresh feedstock at the lowest possible cost from range or western market.

Thousands of livestock producers have helped to build up the machinery through which more than $15,000,000 worth of stock went to market last year from local stations in Ohio."

Who's Who in Timely Views

HALF BILLION REDUCTION OF TAXES URGED

By CLAUDE A. SWANSON U. S. Senator from Virginia (Claude Augustus Swanson was born at Swansville, Pittsylvania County, Virginia, March 31, 1862. He was graduated from Randolph-Macon College in 1885, receiving his law degree from the University of Virginia a year later. Swanson began his law practice at Chatham, Virginia. He first went to the lower house of Congress in 1893, and re-elected in 1906. In 1910 he was appointed to fill an unexpired term in the United States Senate, and has served continuously since that time. His home is at Chatham, Virginia.)

Congress at the coming session should effect a reduction in the taxes of between $400,000,000 and $500,000,000. The revenues are sufficient to justify it. It is useless to consider the estimates of the treasury in the consideration of tax reduction, as the treasury always has misled us and the surplus has always proved approximately double that estimate by the treasury.

We have reduced the public debt not by economies, but by exorbitant collections of taxes far in excess of the requirements of the government. The government can now afford to reduce the taxes and retire the public debt from year to year under the requirements of the sinking fund provisions. This would retire the public debt in ample time and give relief to all classes of business, trade and industry and to the people at large. The taxes now are passed on to the people in the form of higher prices of goods sold.

There was no necessity of increasing the corporation tax in the last congress. They should be cut. Relief should be given to many small, hard-pressed corporations. A large part of business now is done by the smaller corporations owned and controlled by the masses of the people.

The nuisance and war emergency taxes should be repealed and there should be a substantial reduction of the income tax between the $10,000 and $50,000 brackets in the income tax law, on which there have been practically no reductions in laws recently enacted by Congress.

I hope that the Democrats will prepare a measure giving substantial tax reduction and present it to congress, not as a partisan measure but as one based on economic principles. The tax reduction can be made without impairing the necessary appropriations for relief of the Mississippi flood districts, for a proper navy and for proper construction of public buildings.

MRS. ELI POWERS DIES ON SATURDAY

Mrs. Elizabeth Catherine Powers, 73, wife of Eli Powers, former resident of Xenia, died at her home on N. Kilmer St., Dayton, O., at 7:25 o'clock Saturday night following a long illness.

Death was attributed to a form of creeping paralysis, which had made her an invalid for some time. She had sustained another stroke about two weeks ago.

Mrs. Powers was born August 3, 1854, the daughter of the late Daniel S. and Eleanor Dean, of New Jasper. She was married to Eli Powers April 19, 1882.

Besides her husband, she leaves two sons, Daniel A. and Frank R. Powers, both of Dayton; one daughter, Arizona Mary, at home; and one grandson, Curtis Dean Powers.

Funeral services will be held at the residence in Dayton Tuesday morning at 10:30 o'clock. Burial will be made in Memorial Park Cemetery, Dayton.

SHE WENT FROM BAD TO WORSE

Down to 98 Pounds—Finally Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Cleveland, Ohio.—"After having my first baby, I lost weight, no matter what I did. Then a doctor told me I would be better if I had another baby, which I did. But I got worse, was always sickly and went down to 98 pounds. My neighbor told me about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as it helped her very much, so I tried it. After taking four bottles, I weigh 116 pounds. It has just done wonders for me and I can do my housework now without one bit of trouble."—Mrs. M. RUSSELL, 1004 Nelson Ave., Cleveland, Ohio.

If some good fairy should appear, and offer to grant your heart's desire, what would you choose? Wealth? Happiness?

Health? That's the best gift. Health is riches that gold cannot buy and surely health is cause enough for happiness.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound may be the good fairy who offers you better health.

The Theater

Almost every dramatic actress, at some time or other, has cherished a secret ambition to portray the title role of "Camille" that famous classic of Alexander Dumas, Jr., which became the best known vehicle of Sarah Bernhardt, and Eleonore Duse, in almost every city of the world. And now Norma Talmadge, so frequently referred to as "the" emotional actress of the screen, has realized such an ambition in the completion of her modern picture version of "Camille" which comes to the Bijou Monday and Tuesday.

In later years, in addition to the performances of two immortals,

Elsie Janis, stage star, accused by a Hollywood dressmaker of failing to pay for a pair of pajamas and a chiffon slip. A suit is threatened.

Bernhardt and Duse, "Camille" has been presented by such well known players as Fanny Davenport, Rose Coghlan, Modjeska, Olga Nethersole, Margaret Anglin, Nanette O'Neill, Ethel Barrymore and others. Gilbert Roland heads the cast supporting Miss Talmadge, in the role of "Armand" the young lover. Others are Lilyan Tashman, Rose Dione, Alec B. Francis, Helen Jerome Eddy and other stars.

Two film versions of the life of Joan of Arc are to be completed. Mary Pickford is said to be starred in one version, and Renee Adoree, the other. The Pickford version will show Joan as a saintly being, and the other will picture the girl as an unusual woman, with great power in her appeal to men.

The prize novel, "Wild Geese" written by Martha Ostenso when nineteen, will be made into a movie. . . Wallace Beery and Raymond Hatton, comedy team of note, will be big game hunters in their next. . . Raymond Griffith is to marry Bertha Mann, stage actress, and is off to England to make comedies for a British firm. . . Doris Kenyon has returned to the screen to play opposite her husband, Milton Sills, in "The Valley of the Giants." Colleen Moore is back with First National and at work on "Till Tell the World." . . Jack Gilbert's next picture after "Pines of Youth" will be "The Cossacks" with Renee Adoree.

ROMANY ROMANCE PALLS AND MOTHER AND SON QUIT GYPSIES

MRS. NINA HILTON AND HER SON, HARRISON.

BY DAVID H. GLICKMAN.
Staff Writer for Central Press and The Gazette.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Sept. 26.—Romany romance may be alluring when viewed from the safe harbor of home, but in reality, well, eating rice three times a day somehow takes the verve out of gypsy life.

At least Mrs. Nina Hilton discovered this when she sailed with a company of 200 gypsies, bound for South America.

She fancied gypsy life to be as charming as its music is sweet. That, of course, was when she was living sheltered and protected with her husband, Fred, and her 9-year-old son, Schooler Harrison, in their easy little home.

Signed as Interpreter.
A gypsy troupe lived in the same vicinity and Mrs. Hilton couldn't resist the call of romance. She signed on to act as interpreter for the band when they landed in Valparaiso. Then one night, with her son, she stole away to the gypsy rendezvous.

Moreover, when Mrs. Hilton and her son, Schooler, embarked, they had no money. That was to be provided for by the Romany rovers. In order to appear more like gypsies, the pair boarded the liner under the romantic names of Mrs. Anna de Floris Johnson and Tony.

No Money Forthcoming.
The promised money wasn't forthcoming, Mrs. Hilton declared. And gypsies weren't nearly as pleasant and respectful as she thought they should be. A radio-gram to the American vice-consul at Manzanillo, on the west coast of Mexico, explained her plight.

When the ship docked at Manzanillo, the disillusioned Mrs. Hilton and her small son were set ashore, and promptly headed toward San Francisco on the first liner available.

Mrs. Hilton and young Harrison have definitely abandoned the gypsy trail, they have announced.

JOHN MOORE, New York business man, goes to Tucson, Ariz., on business, expecting to return to New York the next day. He meets a college associate, Philip Morton, who has business in Mexico. Both drink heavily of tequila and in the subsequent mixup in identity Moore finds himself in Mexico, while Morton, presumably, is in New York. Moore has in his possession a portrait of a girl which had been Morton's. He is met by the Senorita's ambassador, Ramon, who tells him he is to meet her at the church at Tubutama.

The girl's name is Ruth Henshaw. Moore tells her that he is not Morton. He meets Clench, who has been annoying Ruth.

CHAPTER TWELVE.
"At train time Morton was dead drunk, and they put him, I feel sure, on that east-bound train in my place. I was nearly as drunk as Morton but I could still walk and I walked myself into what I thought was a taxi bound for the railroad station. Early this morning I woke up in Sasabe."

"Sasabe! Pedro brought you! Why didn't you go back to Tucson?" John shook his head slightly. "I met the Ambassador," he said. "Ramon! But—but—" protested the girl with rising excitement. "I sent him to see Mr. Morton."

"He thought I was Morton." "You did not deceive him?" "No. At first, it never occurred to me that he thought I was Morton." "But afterwards—" Ruth demanded.

John hesitated. How could he tell her in a few words all the reasons why he had not enlightened the Ambassador as to his own identity? He could not tell her that Morton was what he was.

"Ramon worked on your sympathy—about me," Ruth said hotly. "He is very much to blame for this! I trusted him!"

"Look here, Miss Henshaw, you are not to blame the Ambassador. To the very best of his ability he obeyed your instructions."

"He did not!" flashed the girl. "I sent him with a message he was to deliver to Mr. Morton."

"Ah!" commented John dryly. "He understood that he was to use his own judgment as to whether he should deliver your message or not."

"Yes. That was my plan," Ruth admitted coldly.

"Your plan?" exclaimed John Moore with so much energy that she startled her. "Your plan! You made a plan: so did Ramon; so did Morton; so did I. Which plan succeeded? None of them."

For this reason or that all of our plans went a little askew. But I am beginning to see that all of the incidents that upset our several plans fitted together into another plan."

"Whose plan?" demanded Ruth laughingly.

"Call it Fate," said John Moore. "Absurd!" commented the girl. "No it isn't," contradicted John. "This morning I began to suspect it; now, I know it."

"You cannot know it," returned Ruth.

"Certainly I can! Ramon knew it, too."

"Ramon did?"

"I am sure he did," replied John, earnestly. "He seemed so sure that he knew all about me that I asked him if he knew as much about the man who nearly came instead of me."

"Ramon worked on your sympathy about me," Ruth said hotly.

It was, I thought, fine sarcasm on my part. It never feazed the Ambassador. He only said, "I know de senorita need you an' you come! Ramon knew."

The girl lifted her chin a little and stared past John. "I have no doubt," said she, with elaborate indifference, "that you meant well. But Mr. Morton would have served my plan while you do not."

"She waited for John's quick retort, but it did not come. Silence reigned in the belfry; a silence which deepened until the little breeze stealing in from the pepper trees and the golden motes dancing in the sunlight seemed to mock it."

A moment passed. The silence grew poignant to the girl. Why, O, why had she been quite so rude? The man was a gentleman and had been very polite. Of course she had been right in putting an end to this nonsense about Fate, but she need not have entirely crushed him like this. Evidently he could say nothing; she must. "You must not think," she began and looked up at him.

"The look—very like tenderness—with which he was regarding her vanished quickly, but his grin—and actually there was no other word for it—broadened until he laughed aloud."

"You cannot fight Fate," he said soothly, as it is to a child. "Oh," gasped Ruth. "Oh!" she longed to stamp her foot at him. "Oh, but I can! This is all perfectly absurd! I do not know you and you do not know me! It is absurd!"

"I know just how you feel," soothed John, still grinning. "I felt that way myself this morning. At one time I even grew nearly as excited as you in protesting that I did not know you. But it did no good. Ramon reminded me—" he paused.

"Of what?" asked Ruth as if against her will.

"He reminded me," said John gravely, "that I was wearing your picture over my heart."

"My picture?" Ruth breathed. "But that isn't possible."

"Look at it," deliberately John drew the picture from his breast pocket and held it so that she might see it. "I had never seen you, nor heard your name; yet I was wearing this picture—as Ramon said. Do you begin to see how everything fits together?"

"That picture has stood on my uncle's desk for a year. How did you get it?" The girl was rather subdued with bewilderment.

"I took it from a man I felt sure had no right to have it. You did not give it to Morton, did you?"

"No, no! How did he get it?" "I do not know. Perhaps we shall find that out," said John a trifle grimly.

"You took it from him—" Ruth was thinking aloud, intently. "What was he doing with it?"

"Nothing that matters," answered John. "All that counts really is that my having it, this morning, conquered me; just as it has conquered you now."

"Give me the picture, please." Reluctantly John released the picture. "All right," he sighed. "But I have an idea that Ramon will think less of me. However—now we know where we are. We can lay our campaign against this Rodriguez chap."

"No, no. You said you had to be in New York on the thirtieth—" "No, I didn't," interrupted John. "I said I thought—last night—that I had to be there. I have learned a lot of things since then."

"Oh," pleaded the girl. "You must not go on with this, Mr. Moore." John smiled down at her. "You know I am going on with this," he said quietly.

"Seriously—I cannot let you." "You cannot stop me," smiled John.

"But don't you see," urged Ruth, "when it was Mr. Morton who was coming down here on his own business, anyway, it was one thing. But I cannot let you upset all your plans for something which is probably all in my imagination. Oh, I am sorry I told you about it!"

"You are not sorry you told me about it," said John almost sternly, "and you know in your heart, just as I do, that this thing is bigger—and more important than any plans of either yours or mine. We are going to see it through. Afterwards, you need not worry about afterwards. That responsibility is mine. For the rest of it, I came on from Sasabe of my own volition; I am going through with it upon my own determination. Unless—" and he spoke very slowly, "unless you tell me that you will not trust me as Ramon trusted me."

"Oh, but I do," protested the girl quickly. "It isn't that—" "Then that's that," broke in John gaily. "Now! What do you know of this deal of Morton's?"

"Nothing, really. There you see. And the first word you utter will give it all away even though they don't know you, can't be done."

"Wait a minute. Do you mean that none of them knows Morton?" John was eager.

"None of them has ever seen him." "Then it is easy! All I have to do is to let them fool themselves. You see I've an idea that the harder I tell them I am John Moore the harder they will think me Philip Morton."

"But—but—" began Ruth. "No 'buts'!" John told her, smiling. "We will go back to the car. No need of trying to fool Pedro now that Clench has seen us together. We will take Clench along with us to keep him out of mischief. Are you ready for a trip to the moon?"

"The moon!" "Well," John shrugged. "I have discovered today that with Fate at the helm one never knows what may happen!"

Ruth drew a deep breath. "It is all rather amazing, isn't it? Let's hope we don't fail your goddess."

"Good girl!" John exclaimed over her as she had exulted in the plaza. "With both of us helping her this is going to be a lark!"

"Rodriguez is a dangerous man, Mr. Moore."

"Is he?" John asked and smiled. "And Clench would stab you in the back if he dared. And my uncle and Manuel—"

"Quite a flock of them, aren't there?" commented John, happily, as she paused. "All right. We will take them all on—you and I—together!"

due to some sort of an infection similar to chicken pox. It has also been found often to be associated with pyorrhea and bad tonsils, so it would look as though some cases were due to poisons from diseases elsewhere in the body. However, we always must hold this thought in mind. Usually before an infection can take place (unless the infection germs are so very virulent or in large enough numbers) there is something that has made the tissues lose their resisting powers, and you should find out what that factor is and remedy it.

The infection of shingles follows the nerves and all the tissues of the body are profoundly affected by incorrect diets.

Better send for our article on Balanced Diet. That takes up hypacidity, hypacidity and acidosis. (Enclose a fully self-addressed stamped envelope with your request.)

While it is true that influenza or other infectious diseases weaken the resistance so that tuberculosis may be more easily contracted (or, if already present, may become active), it is not true that those who have had influenza eventually die of tuberculosis. If it were, most of us would be dead by now. Certainly an enormous number had influenza during the epidemic. Yes, I had it, too. And you should see me now! I certainly don't look tubercular!

Medical Society and ask for a list. Tomatoes and Shingles. L. wants to know if acid fruits such as tomatoes will cause shingles?

It is not known what the cause of shingles is, L., but we certainly believe that the tomato is absolutely innocent.

You speak of tomatoes as an acid fruit. While they are acid to the taste, they are alkaline in their final reaction in the body and are a most wholesome food, for they are high in vitamins and their acidity seems to preserve the vitamins even when they are canned, cooked or dried.

Some people have what is known as an idiosyncrasy or hypersensitivity of certain foods; that is, they cause some skin or other disturbance in them which is not usual. Of course if you had this hypersensitivity to tomatoes you might think of some connections with any skin eruption.

Back to shingles again: The belief is growing among the skin specialists that shingles may be

TRENCH FOOT.

H. is suffering from what he calls "trench foot," which he acquired while in service in France. His feet crack and burn terribly. Will I explain the cause and cure? I don't find anything in the library or files about trench foot, H., but I do find something about trench fever, which is a specific infection transmitted by the bite of the body louse and its excretions. This is a war disease, and while it is not fatal, the sickness caused from it, so Rosenau says in his Preventive Medicine and Hygiene, exceeded that of any other disease on the western front in the World War.

The prevention of the trench fever depends primarily upon the attack against lice, and disinfection of the urine, sputum and other secretions from the patient. In the description of the fever, Rosenau states that the cases usually recover fully, but there are a certain number who pass into a chronic state, and suffer with pains in the legs, arms, head, and have a tendency to excessive sweating. The tendency to excessive sweating of your feet may be what causes your trouble, H. Perhaps a solution to prevent this will remedy it. Try one made of one ounce of formalin to the quart of water. Wash the feet with soap and water thoroughly, twice a day. After drying apply a little of the solution and rub it in. After it is dry, sprinkle a little talcum powder or Do this every day for a week or so, then perhaps once a week will be sufficient. Change your socks every day.

I hope this will help you. But you should see a physician anyway. If you don't know any in your locality, ring up your County

HALITOSIS? KILL IT!

Seven times in ten, Halitosis is due to a sour, gassy stomach, caused by intestinal stasis, or "Constipation." People with halitosis (unpleasant breath) are shunned, avoided, because they are like a "plague"—friends just can't endure being near such a person. Old and young, rich and poor, none escape if fermented food remains in the body more than 24 hours. Even if the bowels move daily, there is often a remainder of foul, decaying matter, that can only be removed with a thorough cleansing, such as Blackburn's Casco-Royal Pills produce. This sweet little pill is "Better than Castor Oil."

Its action is pleasant and prompt. Stomach, liver, spleen and intestines, all are benefited. The effect is so different from ordinary laxatives, salts, calomel, etc. A smooth, abundant action from the very first dose, soon rid you of all the disagreeable symptoms.

Let the whole family learn the value of Blackburn's Casco-Royal Pills, 45 pills, 20 cts. at drug stores.

SCHNEIDER CUP FOR SEAPLANES GOES TO BRITISH AIR PILOT

Greatest Crowd At Lido For Famous Air Events

LIDO, Venice, Sept. 26.—Lieutenant Webster of Great Britain, won the Schneider cup race for seaplanes today.

LIDO, Venice, Sept. 26.—Witnessed by the greatest throng that ever crowded its way into this ancient city of the Doges, the Schneider cup racers took their tiny seaplanes into the air at 2:30 o'clock today in competition for the Schneider cup, emblematic of world speed supremacy.

The first to start was Lieutenant Kinkadee, British contestant. His Gloster-Napier machine flashed across the starting line at exactly 2:30 o'clock, the time officially set for the start of the race. Kinkadee's time for the first lap over the thirty-mile triangular course opposite Lido Beach was 267 miles per hour.

The second racer to start was the Italian De Bernardi, winner of last year's event at Norfolk, Va., when the Italians won their first leg on the cup. The Italian's red Macchi racer roared past the judge's stand, leaving a trail of black smoke on the water.

The other contestants followed in rapid succession. Bad luck immediately beset the Italian flyers. Lieutenant Ferrarini was unable to complete the first lap, and returned to the hangar. De Bernardi made a false landing after completing the second lap leaving a single Italian contestant in the race.

Then misfortune tagged the first of the British flyers, Lieutenant S. M. Kinkadee. He was forced down at the end of the sixth lap by engine trouble, after having attained the greatest speed of any of the racers. Kinkadee's best time was an average of 290 miles per hour for one lap. The terrific speed caused the exhaust fumes to turn the fuselage of his plane completely black.

Kinkadee's withdrawal left two contestants still in the race, one British and one Italian.

RUTH ELDER FLIGHT POSTPONED AGAIN; SET FOR WEDNESDAY

Miss Grayson Will Fly To Maine To Plan Take Off

CURTIS FIELD, N. Y., Sept. 26.—The proposed New York-to-Paris flight of Ruth Elder, Florida beauty contest winner, today was postponed until Wednesday because of unfavorable weather conditions. Miss Elder and her navigator, Captain George Hamilton, made a flight over New York yesterday, but Captain Hamilton explained today that it was just a pleasure trip, as the plane—a Stinson Detroiter named "The American Girl"—had already been placed in perfect condition for the trans Atlantic hop and had been thoroughly tested. He said, however, that Wednesday was the first day he would consider for a start to Paris because of a low pressure area over the Atlantic. Frances W. Grayson, another feminine aspirant to trans-Atlantic flight honors, declared today that she and her crew, consisting of Wilmer Stultz and Bryce Goldsborough, probably would fly in the Sikorsky amphibian some day this week to Old Orchard, Me., to investigate the desirability of the place as a hopping off point.

COLD WEATHER COMING

A much lower temperature followed by frost, was due to arrive here late Monday afternoon, according to weather forecasts received at the County Farm Bureau offices, Monday morning, by J. R. Kimber, county agent.

An extensive high pressure area with a much lower temperature in the northwest was reported in the morning. This condition indicates that this part of the state will be visited by cooler weather within a few hours, Mr. Kimber said.

The first snow of the season was reported from Denver, Colo., Sunday. The snow was accompanied by near freezing temperatures. Snow is also said to have fallen at Newcastle, Wyo., the same day, accompanied by freezing temperatures. Snow and rain fell during the day and came on the heels of Saturday, one of the hottest days of late summer in Wyoming.

The cold wave emanating from the west, is thought to be headed in this direction.

EXPECT NEW ARREST AS INVESTIGATION OF MURDER HASTENS

Police Find Arsenal In Search Of Suspect's Home

HAMMONTON, N. J., Sept. 26.—With an arrest predicted within the next thirty-six hours, the investigation into the murder of Dr. William Lillendahl, 72-year-old physician whose wife is held as a material witness, moved forward with rapidity today.

Principal attention focused about the finding of a "veritable arsenal" in the home of Willis Beach, 52-year-old poultryman who has confessed sending clandestine notes to the physician's forty-year-old widow, Mrs. Margaret Lillendahl. The letters were addressed to "Peggy Anderson."

Armed with a search warrant, the police searched Beach's home, acting on the expressed conviction of Prosecutor Louis Repetto that the poultry dealer had important knowledge of the crime which he was concealing from the authorities. They found two pistols, both of .32 caliber, and a number of shot guns and rifles.

Soon after Lillendahl was found shot to death in his automobile on a little-used byway near here, investigators stated the murder had been committed with a revolver of .32 caliber. The weapons found in Beach's home were to be compared today with the bullets taken from the slain physician's body.

Beach's son, Roy, who is thirty-four, claimed ownership of all the guns, explaining he kept the revolvers to protect the home from burglars, and the rifles and shot guns because of his hunting activities. He also told the investigators, according to Repetto, that his father had burned a large quantity of papers and letters when the murder plot was first begun.

Mrs. Lillendahl who claims that her husband was murdered by two negroes when he attempted to shield her from attack, was to be taken to the murder scene today to re-enact the crime.

INVESTIGATE DEATH

CINCINNATI, O., Sept. 26.—An examination of the body of Mrs. Helen Diehn, 26, was to be made by county authorities here today, in an effort to determine the cause of her death, believed to have resulted from an overdose of a sleeping powder. Police were holding for investigation Stanley Smith, who lives in adjoining apartment, who called authorities, when he said, he found the woman lying unconscious in her room.

ATTEMPT TO BLAST YANKS' TRAIN

BELIEVE RADICALS DYNAMITED TRACKS OF LEGION SPECIAL

Delay In Schedule Saves Americans—Probe Started

NICE, France, Sept. 26.—A huge sign, bearing the inscription "Vivent Sacco and Vanzetti," furnished the chief clue today in the police investigation into the attempted derailment of special trains bearing members of the American Legion on their "good-will tour" of Europe.

First attempt occurred near the Golfe Juan station on the Riviera. Five minutes before the Paris express, carrying hundreds of Legionnaires on the first leg of their tour of amity and friendship through many countries of Europe, was scheduled to pass the spot, a tremendous explosion ripped loose a two-foot section of the track and tore a deep hole in the roadbed.

The night express, however, was fourteen minutes late, and the break was discovered in time to halt the train and route it over a different line to Nice. Several hours after the explosion, railroad employees found two great boulders and a pile of sticks and sand on the tracks at Cap Dail, on the main line between Nice and Monte Carlo. In this instance, the tracks were cleared before any damage was done.

Military police dispatched to guard the line immediately after the first bombing, found the Sacco-Vanzetti sign near the spot where the explosion occurred. The police advanced the belief that the attempted outrages were in the nature of a radical "protest" against the reception accorded the Legionnaires in Paris. They are connected with recent outrages, attributed to anarchist or Communist plotters, which have shaken the Riviera country.

An extensive investigation was immediately begun by the police, and efforts made to trace the perpetrators of the near outrage through the lettering on the sign. All trains were re-routed over different lines following the discovery of the plot, and the legion visitors placed under a heavy guard. They were not molested, however, after their arrival in Nice, participating in a parade and other ceremonies with no untoward demonstration marred the proceedings.

AMERICAN CHARGED WITH PIRACY AFTER RUM SHIP CAPTURE

British Arrest Man Who Confiscated Booze For Himself

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—Charles H. Nestle, and American, faces charges of piracy on the high seas because of alleged participation in the capture of a rum runner, the state department has been informed by the consul at Nassau, in the British Bahamas.

A magistrate has been sent to Nestle by the governor of the islands to give him a hearing on the charges. It is alleged that Nestle, though not a member of the United States Coast Guard, helped to capture a rum smuggler, an American, and appropriated part of the runner's cargo. Reports from Nassau said Nestle admitted being on the coast guard vessel. It was said that part of the liquor was found in Nestle's possession.

A full investigation of the case has been ordered by the state department and the coast guard. Nestle is a former American prohibition agent. He was arrested in a small boat off Bimini, where he fled from Savannah, Ga. British authorities reported that the capture was made within three miles of the shore, off Gun Key, a concentration point for the rum runners.

The coast guard declared that the rum runner was captured five miles off shore and therefore outside the territorial waters of the island.

LEAGUE OF NATIONS ASSEMBLY PAVES WAY FOR DISARMAMENT

Adjusts Differences Between Great Britain, France And Germany—Favors Continued Arbitration

GENEVA, Switzerland, Sept. 26.—The League of Nations assembly by unanimous vote, today adjusted the outstanding differences between Great Britain, France and Germany on the questions of disarmament and national security, and paved the way for resumption of the work toward international disarmament, which was virtually discontinued after the break-up of the Tripartite Naval Armament Limitation Conference in June.

The assembly unanimously adopted resolutions recommending progressive development of arbitration through particular and collective agreements, and recommended speeding up the work of the preparatory disarmament conference to permit the calling of a general disarmament conference before next September.

Another resolution was adopted recommending the appointment of a special committee to study the question of security simultaneously with that of disarmament, thus meeting with the French demand that the two questions be jointly considered and discussed. This resolution recommended that members of the League draft regional defense accords among themselves, and recommended that each member to make known the extent of military aid that would be forthcoming in any particular armed conflict.

The assembly refused to accept the suggestion of Fridtjof Nansen, noted Norwegian explorer, who has been administering the League's welfare work in Armenia, that the League cease its work among the Armenian refugees because of insufficient funds.

The assembly voted a credit of $3,500,000 for the construction of a League of Nations palace at Geneva as a permanent home for the League. A committee of five was appointed to select plans for the structure.

CAPTAIN JOHN POST DIES FROM WOUNDS IN SATURDAY FIGHT

Negro Slayer Taken From Dayton—Police On Extra Shifts

DAYTON, O., Sept. 26.—City police began working twelve hour shifts here at 7 a. m., today, instead of the usual eight hour shift, to insure a better patrol of the city, following the death of Police Captain John C. Post, 46, who died Sunday after a pistol duel with Otis Bridges, negro, who was wounded. Bridges was removed to St. Francis Hospital, Columbus, Sunday to insure his safety. Captain Post was shot Saturday afternoon.

Feeling in Dayton is said to be high as Post's death is the second in the police department to be charged against negroes in the past week.

Roy Freeman, negro, who is under indictment for the first degree murder of Patrolman William C. Horn, was removed to the Franklin County Jail at Columbus, for safe-keeping until his trial which is set for October 10, Horn was shot September 18.

Police are also seeking two negroes, who are said to have fatally shot Alfred Knight, a Baltimore and Ohio Railroad detective on September 15.

Bridges also shot two other policemen, Edward A. Frick and V. J. Kunz, who will probably recover. The officers were shot when they visited Bridges' home Saturday to arrest him after he had attempted to shoot a neighbor.

Patrolman C. C. Bowen, apparently crazed over the shooting of his superior officer, crept into the hospital ward where the slayer was lying Saturday night, and fired two shots at Bridges.

However, the revolver was loaded with blanks, as the officer had taken part in an imaginary bank holdup at the fairground's a feature of Police and Firemen's field day exercises, Saturday, and had forgotten to remove the cartridges. The officer was reported last night to be in a Dayton hospital, suffering from a nervous breakdown.

Bridges has little chance to recover from his wounds, it is said, and his death is expected hourly. His most serious wound is in the neck, where a bullet pierced the windpipe. Bullets also struck him on the left hip and left arm.

Captain Post was appointed on the police force January 5, 1905, and became a sergeant October 4, 1918. He served in this capacity until October 1, 1925, when he was appointed captain. Funeral services will be held at the Grace Methodist Episcopal Church at 2:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon in charge of the Rev. C. W. Brashers. Burial will be made in Memorial Park Cemetery. The body will lie in state at the church and his death is expected hourly, from 10 a. m. Wednesday until the hundreds of persons are expected to pay their last respects to the dead captain.

NEGRO KILLED BY AKRON POLICE AFTER LONG PISTOL BATTLE

AKRON, O., Sept. 26.—An unidentified Negro, apparently about 23 years old, was dead today following a protracted battle with police yesterday.

The man was driving an automobile which collided with a machine driven by J. B. Conway. Conway's car was disabled but he pursued the man in another auto and the fugitive left his own machine and ran.

Reaching the home of C. A. Miller, a policeman, the man broke the glass on the front door and crawled through. There was no one in the home at the time and the man first went to the basement and fired several shots at his pursuers.

When police arrived, he continued shooting and Lieut. Franklin McAllister was shot in the hand during the skirmish. All available police squads were brought up and tear bombs were taken into the house.

What Connection?

Willis Beach, Vineland, N. J., voluntarily submitted to questioning by the State police for two hours in connection with the murder of Dr. Lillendahl.

MASKED MEN SOUGHT AFTER DARING HOLD UP SATURDAY NIGHT

Bandits Escape In Auto—Fred Randall Is Victim

Police are looking for an old model touring car and two white men who held up Fred K. Randall, 32, of 33 Center St., attendant at The Carroll-Binder Co., filling station, N. Detroit St., at Fairground Ave., at 9:30 o'clock Saturday night and escaped with $38 from the cash register.

Meager descriptions of the masked bandits and reports that the auto in which they made their escape was either an old Overland or an old Grant touring car, painted red and without a top, furnished the only clues on which police were basing their search Monday.

Randall was alone in the filling station when the bandits entered a rear door. He had his back turned to the rear entrance and thought a friend was attempting a joke when one of the bandits ordered, "stick 'em up." He turned to look into the barrel of a pistol in the hand of one of the bandits and the order was repeated.

Randall opened the cash register at their command and permitted one of the bandits to scoop up cash in the drawer. The bandits then forced the attendant to stand in a corner as they retreated through the rear door and made their way to their auto, which had been parked on King St. Police learned they drove south on King St. in making their escape.

Randall called police from a telephone in the neighborhood and Patrolman Craig and Robinson rounded up five suspects shortly after the hold-up. All were later released. Randall described one of the bandits as tall and thin while the other was short and of heavier build. Both hid their features behind red bandanna handkerchiefs tied across the lower part of their faces. Randall was unarmed and only one of the bandits showed a pistol.

Police were told by a boy in the neighborhood that he saw the two men park their car on King St. before the robbery and make their way through empty lots back of the filling station to the rear of the station. He saw them enter and later watched them return to the auto and drive away. Police also learned that two men in an auto answering the description of the bandit car were seen driving slowly on N. Detroit St., shortly before noon Saturday. They believe the bandits were strangers here and notified police of adjoining cities to aid them in the search.

LEGIONNAIRES ARE DESERTING PARIS

PARIS, Sept. 26.—Paris returned to normalcy today. The few thousand members of the American Legion remaining in Paris have been reduced to the status of ordinary tourists. They are spending their time in sight-seeing and shopping without the obligation of attending receptions, meetings and banquets.

Legion caps still dot the boulevards and the cafes, but so far the French government is not concerned, the pilgrimage is over. Most of the Legionnaires have either departed for home or left for other points in Europe on a "good-will tour."

Workmen today began tearing down the huge welcome signs and other decorations placed in honor of the visiting Legionnaires a week ago.

BIRTHDAY TEA IS HELD BY JOINT SOCIETIES.

The auditorium of the First United Presbyterian Church, was the scene of an unusually pleasant occasion Friday, when the Woman's Missionary Society and the Young Ladies' Missionary Society held a joint "birthday tea" with the Second Church W. The church was beautifully decorated and the entire affair was presided over by Mrs. E. C. Moore and Mrs. R. H. Nash had charge of the devotional service. Her topic was a "World-wide Prayer," which she and several assistants ably handled in prayers and praises. Mrs. Moorman, president, recited a poem as a tribute to Mrs. J. P. CAVES OF WICKEDNESS POINTED OUT BY DR. BIEDERWOLF HERE

"Men are hiding today in man-made caves. There are more religiousisms and spasms today than ever in history. God's judgment will rise like the Jordan and all trusting in them shall perish."

This was the declaration of Dr. W. E. Biederwolf, evangelist at the First M. E. Church, when he preached on "Caves" Sunday night. He told how the Jordan River rising in the Lebanon Mountains, flows rapidly down through the valleys of Palestine, washing its way through the rocky ridges. During the rainy season the water rises higher and higher and fills the caves washed out in the banks. The wild beasts, seeking refuge from one cave to the other always going higher and at last run to the highest cave but the waters, rising still higher, fill the cavern and they perish.

"The first cave is infidelity," said the speaker. "I don't see how an infidel can be an honest man. He says he is hunting light, but he reads no book that will bring light—only more infidel books, books filled with more darkness. What good has infidelity ever done? It has never healed a wounded heart, never whispered peace to the troubled, never shed a ray of light into a darkened soul. It is no good in life and knocks you in death."

"The second cave into which men flee is Unitarianism, but there is no salvation there. It denies the Virgin Birth of Jesus Christ and you might just as well cut the story of the death and resurrection and ascension of Christ—one is just as credible as the other. To deny the Virgin Birth of Jesus makes an impostor of Christ. I would sooner throw the whole Bible into the gutter and take my chance with the world."

Good Works. It is lots better to be moral than immoral but it cannot redeem a soul from sin. You can never work your way into heaven. You might as well expect to push a trolley car up a hill by blowing against the front window from the inside as to expect to deserve a place in heaven by mere earthly goodness. No deed of heroism or patriotism can atone for a rotten life. If you could be saved by keeping the law you must be absolutely perfect. Where can you find such a man?

"Even if you could live a perfect life from this time, how about the sins of the past. Who will pay the penalty? There is no other safe retreat than Jesus' blood and righteousness."

The church was filled for the service. The winners of the "beauty show" of the men's meeting, the father and son who most resembled each other, John and Raymond Geger, were presented a book "The Man God Tried to Kill," autographed by the author, Dr. Biederwolf. A special number was given by eight young women from the O. S. and S. O. Home.

A large crowd attended the men's meeting Sunday afternoon when Dr. Biederwolf preached on "The White Life." A feature of the afternoon was the singing of the men's chorus and quartet.

FOUR ESCAPE HURTS IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Mr. and Mrs. James Murphy and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lewis, all of Paintersville, escaped serious injury in an auto accident near New Vienna, Sunday evening. The accident happened when the car overturned, after a tire blew out. The auto was owned by Mr. Murphy but was being driven by Mr. Lewis.

Mr. and Mrs. Murphy received cuts and bruises but Mr. and Mrs. Lewis were unhurt.

What Dr. Caldwell Learned in 47 Years Practice

Dr. Caldwell watched the results of constipation for 47 years, and believed that no matter how careful people are of their health, diet and exercise, constipation will occur from time to time regardless of how much one tries to avoid it. Of next importance, then, is how to treat it when it comes. Dr. Caldwell always was in favor of getting as close to nature as possible, hence his remedy for constipation, known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a mild vegetable compound. It can not harm the most delicate system and is not a habit forming preparation. Syrup Pepsin is pleasant-tasting, and youngsters love it. It does not gripe. Thousands of mothers have written us to that effect.

Dr. Caldwell did not approve of drastic physics and purges. He did not believe they were good for human beings to put into their system. In a practice of 47 years he never saw any reason for their use when a medicine like Syrup Pepsin will empty the bowels just as promptly, more cleanly and gently, without gripping and harm to the system.

Keep free from constipation! It robs your strength, hardens your arteries and brings on premature old age. Do not let a day go by without a bowel movement. Do not sit and hope, but go to a druggist and get one of the generous bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Take the proper dose that night and by morning you will feel like a different person. Use Syrup Pepsin for yourself and members of the family in constipation, biliousness, sour and crampy stomach, bad breath, no appetite, headaches, and to break up fevers and colds. Always have a bottle in the house, and observe these three rules of health: Keep the head cool, the feet warm, the bowels open.

We would be glad to have you prove at our expense how much Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin can mean to you and yours. Just write "Syrup Pepsin," Monticello, Illinois, and we will send you prepaid a FREE SAMPLE BOTTLE.

BIBLE THOUGHT

BLESS HIS NAME:—Enter into His gates with Thanksgiving, and into His courts with praise; be thankful unto Him, and bless His name. For the Lord is good; His mercy is everlasting; and His truth endureth to all generations. Psalm 100:4, 5.

ROYAL ROAD TO LEARNING

Within the last few years, authors and editors have been at work on books that are designed to place the most important cultural information within the reach of all who have learned to read well.

Hendrik Willem Van Loon contributed vastly toward this desirable objective when he wrote his "Story of Mankind." He produced a history of the world on a new plane. Whoever can read a Fourth Reader can read the "Story of Mankind." And whoever absorbs the knowledge and considers well the implications in this book has ceased to be ignorant about some of the very phases of life in this interesting world.

Now there has been announced a prize of $7,500-dollars for the best book of "humanized knowledge," the Forum magazine and the publishing firm of Simon & Schuster co-operating in furnishing the money, striking a medal, and publishing the book.

Such a prize doubtless will bring out something monumental in a popularization of knowledge. It won't be a royal road to learning. No; what's wanted is a democratic road to learning, so that everybody will know something and whoever wants to learn will know enough to make life interesting.

THE MAKING OF A GREATER CITY

It is frequently remarked that one of the essentials of prosperity is the element of confidence. If there is a general feeling in the business community that business will be good, then it commonly is good. But if people get panicky and fear disaster, then disaster is rather sure to come.

The truth applies to the individual and the company and the corporation in building up its own prosperity. It has to feel some certainty of success before it can win that success.

That feeling of confidence and certainty is necessary not merely to give force to its own efforts, but it is necessary for its effect on the public. If a traveling salesman walks into the business house to which he hopes to sell goods with a timid and apologetic air, and fails to assert strongly the merits of his goods, if he merely claims they are "just as good" as something else, he will not sell much stuff. If he does not tell that his lines are superior, and if he is not ready with talking points to prove that they are superior, he will not be an efficient salesman.

There is no doubt that the people of this city are becoming thoroughly "sold" on this city. Confidence is growing. There is evidence on every hand to warrant this optimistic feeling.

Industries and business concerns are expanding and pushing forward, and indications point to still greater activity and growth.

The Way of the World

By GROVE PATTERSON
READING

Summer is over and summer sports give way before the lengthening shadows of fall and winter. It is time to read. Don't worry if you are not keeping up with the new books. Read the old ones first—the ones that have stood the stormy weather of the years. If you are about to read a modern novel, change your mind for a few days and read Thomas Hardy's "Tess of the D'Urbervilles" or "The Mayor of Casterbridge" or "Jude the Obscure." If you care for realism they have more realism and better realism than all the modern.

KNOWLEDGE

Speaking of reading, recall the words of Daniel Webster: "Knowledge, in truth, is the great sun in the firmament. Life and power are scattered with all its beams."

There is no getting away from the fact that the prizes of the world are for those who know.

AN OLD PROVERB

An old proverb says to "be content with your lot while you look for a better."

That's more than merely an old saw. It expresses the desirable end of a whole personal philosophy. The calm confronting of circumstances, the acceptance of things as they are—that is the way of peace. But this does not mean we should lack the enterprise and courage to change our circumstances when the way really opens.

DIVORCES

Seventeen thousand divorce suits are pending in the Chicago courts. This does not mean that the system of marriage is a failure. It merely means that too many young folks are getting married before they are prepared, financially or otherwise. They lack the judgment of maturity. Youth must ever proceed by mistakes. It is too bad that some of their mistakes must last so long and be so serious.

AMBITION

A traveler in England finds the state of the British workingman much below that of the American. The principal reason is not merely one of wages and home conditions. Britain is a country of classes. The thing that makes the American worker what he is will be found in his determination to better himself—to rise from the place in which he is to a better place. He knows that no social barrier stands in his way. He will be accepted for what he is worth. Nobody cares who his grandfather was.

The difference between a "going" man, and one who is not, lies in the single word ambition. The right to ambition is the single greatest heritage of the rank and file of us in America.

New Yorker

By
Burton Rascoe

NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—Everybody has his own reasons for having fallen a little short of what he once expected to accomplish. That is, everybody who is old enough to realize that some of his future that he once counted upon is already past.

My friend, George Coles, was telling me the other day about his reason for having failed to do many of the big things that he once intended to do.

"I have spent about a fifth of my waking life looking for things," he said. "You see, I admit that I have several talents, but my most prominent talent seems to be for losing or misplacing things. When I was a boy on the farm I was always losing the monkey wrench, or the hatchet, or the cows. Some of these things would be found as soon as they were no longer wanted, but many things that I lost were never rediscovered.

"I'm a poor hunter, too. When I start a search I seem to get lost in it, somehow. And so I find myself wasting minutes or hours of the business day, just looking for things that ought to be in a certain place but very seldom are there. My fountain pen, knife, records, notes, letters. Anything that is small, and some things that are large, I mislay. I guess I was never trained to be orderly when I was an infant."

Well, maybe George's mother is a little bit to blame, but I have a feeling that suspicion points strongly to somebody else, and that's George himself. It's never too late to acquire habits of orderliness. Somebody ought to get George a small filing cabinet or a few box files for Christmas. And then George ought to begin to put everything in its proper place every time he puts it anywhere. There's no good excuse for wasting time looking for things. It's so easy to learn orderly habits at any time of life.

Household Hints

MENU HINT

The menu for the little child of nursery-kindergarten age is very important. Following are three that may be served at luncheon or supper time.

Tomato Soup Toast
Baked Apples Milk
Baked Potatoes Spinach
Fruit Milk
Scrambled Eggs Toast
Applesauce Cream Rice Pudding
Milk

Today's Recipes

Tomato Soup—One can of tomatoes or its equivalent in fresh ripe tomatoes, one quart milk, one tablespoon butter, one teaspoon salt, one heaping teaspoon cornstarch or flour. Cook and strain tomatoes, add soup. Boil milk in boiler, thicken with butter and cornstarch, boil 10 minutes, season, add tomatoes, let come to a boil and serve.

Scrambled Eggs—Melt a small piece of butter in frying pan, break eggs on plate, then slip them into the pan, add a tablespoon or two of milk, season with a little salt, stir and cook slowly until thick. Serve on toast.

Creamy Rice—Boil half a cup of rice in a quart of milk until very soft—about an hour. Mix half a cup of sugar, a pinch of salt and two eggs together, add to hot milk and rice, stir and cook until thick, and a little nutmeg, grated orange peel or vanilla flavoring, and pour into pudding dish. Raisins may be added if desired.

Fondant—This is the creamy mass that forms the center of many candies.

Suggestions

Do It Now.
Immerse the ink-stained handkerchiefs or blouse in milk immediately after the accident and the ink will almost always soak right out.

Keeping Fresh Fish.
A Canadian guide suggested the following method of preserving fresh fish: Kill each fish immediately upon catching. Then clean them (the scales, head and tail should be removed). Sprinkle the inside of each with about a handful of black pepper, then wrap fresh grass around it. Put them in a box and pack with ice. It is an easy matter to buy additional ice if the distance traveled is considerable.

For Scratches.
The meat of a pecan nut rubbed into a bad scratch on highly polished furniture will conceal the marks. Polish afterwards with furniture polish.

SQUASH PIE
(Mrs. Mary Morton's Daily Tested Recipe.)
One and one-half cups strained squash, one-half cup sugar, one cup boiling milk, one egg, one teaspoon salt, one teaspoon cinnamon, one egg, slightly beaten. Pour into unbaked crust and put into a hot oven. Moderate the heat after the first 10 or 15 minutes and bake for 40 or 45 minutes, or until set.

Accommodating
The preacher was preaching on the lesser prophets. It had been quite a lengthy sermon already, and it wasn't over yet.

Finally, at the end of the third hour approach, the preacher said: "And now we come to Malachi, the last of the lesser prophets. What will we do with Malachi? Where can we place Malachi?"

Just then an old lady in the rear of the church, who was visibly annoyed by the length of the sermon, arose, saying: "You can give him my seat. I'm going home."

The Far Flung Battle Line

I Have Said in My Heart

By IDA H. McGLONE GIBSON
NEWSPAPERS

The first page of a great newspaper—it is a peculiar development of modern civilization. There are those who work all their lives to do something considered worthy to blazon their names across "The First Page," and there are those who would almost give their lives to keep their names out of this world's great shop window.

"The First Page" is the most impersonal judge of humanity that civilization knows. It has only one standard by which all levels known to man, all actions, all ideas are appraised—is the person, the action, the idea, the event of enough interest to every body to warrant its appearance where it will first catch the eye of the reader.

When the president of the United States issues a proclamation, makes a speech, marries or dies, he automatically makes "the first page." How long he stays on it depends on how radical or opinionated are his utterances and how much they are opposed by those whose opinions help to mould the thought of the country.

Scandal is always accorded a place on the first page. This is because human nature is so made up of chunks of morbid curiosity and self-righteousness that we take great pleasure in recalling to ourselves the prayer of the Pharisee, "Lord, I thank Thee that I am not as other men."

Love—either in its tragic or romantic guise—can usually find a place on the first page, for we all know that the poet spoke the truth when he said, "It is love that makes the world go round."

An atrocious murder or daring holdup, a divorce suit with sensational details, a horrible accident, a fire which means great loss of life or money, a splendid discovery in any science is always "first page stuff."

Lindbergh held first page continuously longer than any other American since American newspapers were printed. "The first page" exerts no favor and gives no quarter. It has no mercy or prejudice. Its only rule of recognition is, will the subject interest the world at large?

It is the most democratic of all tribunals and the greatest class is the conscience as well as the current history of mankind. It holds the mirror up to human nature as nothing else that we know.

Memo: Continue to live so that when you make the first page you will be proud instead of ashamed.

Beauty and Character Revealed Through the Eyes

The eyes are the most revealing feature of the human face. They tell what is going on inside of your mind, as well as much about your past and your ways of looking at things. It is through them that you express to the world outside your personality. Authorities in the field of psychology claim that they can not only tell by your eyes whether you are happy-go-lucky or serious-minded, and your temperament is, and your Useful At Last!

A certain young lady had a pet poodle which, somehow or other disappeared one day. Rewards were offered for its return, and a great fuss was made, without results. Time passed, and all hope of ever seeing the animal had faded away when the neighbor's 5-year-old son brought him in one day in the filthiest condition. The lady was naturally very glad to see her pet again, but was horrified at its appearance.

"Where did you find him, my child?" she asked.

"Oh," replied the child, "I just pulled him off the end of a pole. A fellow down town was using him to wash windows."

So you can see how essential it is to take the best possible care of these delicate organs. In my later talks I am going to tell you how to relieve the strain to which every one's eyes are subject these days, and how to enhance their beauty so they will truly express all the loveliness of your character.

KELLYGRAMS

by Fred C. Kelly

TO GET A JOB SEEK ADVICE

A Competent young salesman found himself out of a job. He wrote letters to well-known firms, placed advertisements in newspapers and trade journals, and answered other advertisements, but without success.

Then a friend suggested to him: "No wonder you're not getting anywhere. You're going about admitting that you haven't any job and want one, which prejudices people against you. What you must do is something that will instantly give an employer a high opinion of you and make him want you before he even knows that he could hire you."

Here's a list of ten of the best firms in your line. Take two or three days off, go to see the heads of these firms.

"When the girl in the outer office asks what you wish to see the boss about, tell her you came to ask his advice about an important question. Then you'll have no trouble seeing him, because no man is so free from vanity that he can withstand the appeal of being sought for advice. When you do see him, don't say anything about needing a job. Simply tell him that you have come to a sort of parting of the ways and wish to make a change that will insure you a real future. Explain to him that this is so important to you that you want the best advice to be had and hence have taken the liberty of asking him."

"By the time you've gone to two or three big men on this mission, one of them will be impressed with what a smart fellow you must be to seek the right place for advice. He will say: 'Maybe we could use you!'"

And that is exactly what happened. This man who couldn't get a job landed a place within four days and is now getting $9,000 a year. I give the reader my word that this story is not exaggerated.

When a man fails at, say, writing stories, or in business it may not be his fault. But, nevertheless, no matter how blameless he is for the failure, we find him less interesting than if he had succeeded. It is the same with a divorced couple. They may have had the most excellent reasons for their divorce, but they are less attractive than if they had made a big success of their matrimonial enterprise. They tried and failed. And, I repeat, no matter how good their reasons are, they can't get away entirely from the fact that they did fail.

Everybody loves success. We are more interested in the champion prize fighter than in the one who nearly won but failed. Indeed, failure is so unattractive, in any field, that stopping to explain how it happened is largely a waste of time.

SPLENDID EXAMPLE
Professor: "I am going to speak on liars today. How many of you have read the twenty-fifth chapter of the text?"

Nearly every student raised his hand.

Behind The Scenes In Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26.—One news correspondent was deported from Mexico recently whose case—lacking the qualities to make a very satisfactory "diplomatic incident"—hasn't been much advertised.

The deportee hadn't been there long. Finding him ignorant of the country and its language—in short, rather green—older members of the correspondent corps had amused themselves describing to him the dangers to which they professed foreign journalists in Mexico City were exposed.

About this time there occurred the sure-enough "de Courcy deportation"—no pipe dream but the real thing, which the state department acted like resenting for awhile, but finally didn't because some of our deportation methods are a trifle informal, too.

Anyway, the chance for his acquaintances to assure our hero, still on the scene, that he was next on the list, was too good to be passed up. Only, he was warned, he was reserved for a yet worse fate—a firing squad and an adobe wall—but, for heaven's sake, he mustn't try to escape—that would give the butchers just the opportunity they were thirsting for.

Trembling in his boots, our correspondent did nevertheless manage to smuggle out an "S O S" which, in due course, reached his boss in New York—the head of news interests of undoubtedly great weight and influence.

From this magnate there prestonly landed on the amazed President Calles' desk a steen-page telegram of blood-curdling threats, in the event that aught ill befell the writer's representative in the land of the Montezumas.

"There must be some mistake," came back the conciliatory answer, in Spanish, from the Mexican chief executive. "I have not, and never have had, a thought of harming a hair of your correspondent's head.

"I can see, however, that you are very uneasy concerning him. As I would not, for worlds, have you suffer unnecessary anxiety, I am sending him to the Rio Grande under a strong guard, with orders to deliver him safely to your side of the border."

Apparition of A. A. Adeo, who served the state department, as second assistant secretary, for 38 years, until 1924, has just been hung in the department's diplomatic room.

Gazing at the well-remembered features, an attaché told this story: "One day Adeo had occasion to call a man on the telephone.

"This is A. A. Adeo speaking," he said.

"Beg pardon, I didn't catch that name," replied the chap at the other end of the line.

"A. A. Adeo," "Please spell it," "A. A. Adeo," "Yes," "A. A. Adeo," "Go to heck, ya smart Eleck! Ya can't kid me!"

Several years before his death, President Samuel Gompers of the American Federation of Labor was a witness before a senate committee which was considering certain pending labor legislation, according to Bill Roberts of the federation's Washington staff, and the question of a fixed minimum wage came up.

"Now, look here, Mr. Gompers," said the chairman, "this thing of paying the same money to a tinsmith workman and an indifferent workman never has proved to my sense of justice. How do you defend it?"

"Don't all you senators get the same pay?" asked Gompers.

"Yes, we do," said the chairman, "but what of it?"

"Well, do you mean to tell me," demanded the old labor leader, "that you're all worth the same?"

Living and Loving

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

"Let the dead past bury its dead," sounds like a good motto, but a hectic or "purple" past, as we flippantly call it, has a habit of resurrecting itself. Like Banquo's ghost, it "will not down."

The past of the man she loves is haunting the young woman who writes the following letter: "Dear Mrs. Lee: I am a young and inexperienced girl of 19. I have fallen in love with an older man of 28. He seems sincere in his declarations of love, but has been rather 'wild' in the past. My friends and family advise me against him. What am I to do? Please advise me."

UNDECIDED.
That is pretty difficult to answer, Undecided, without knowing the man. If a person is honestly trying to live a good, straight life, he certainly should be encouraged, and who can do that better than the girl he loves and who loves him? If he is physically fit and you are sure you really love him and are congenial there is no reason you should not marry. But you will probably have to make up your mind to fight for him always, as others will not let you forget that he was once wild, and will interpret his actions in that light. It's the price he has to pay for his previous life and one never suffers alone in this world, you know. "Dear Mrs. Lee: I am a girl of 21 and engaged to a boy 21. Now, Mrs. Lee, we are to be married sometime this year, and my brother was married last month, so they want me to put my wedding off because they say it is bad for two in the family to get married in one year. Now, Mrs. Lee, do you think all this talk is true? Would you advise me to put my wedding off until next year?"

WORRIED.
If that is all the reason you have for postponing the wedding, I would go right ahead, "Worried." I was married in June and my brother in October of the same year, and both marriages have held through a good many years, so I guess there is nothing to worry about. It sounds like a silly superstition to me. Go ahead with your plans, and good luck.

In answer to "Green," it would do no harm to say something about his invitation, but not necessary. Possibly he found he couldn't make it, so said nothing more. If you would like to have him call or go with him and he named a definite time, accept, but I think you are getting over what liking you had for him, from what you say.

Peter's Adventures

By Mrs. Florence Smith Vincent

LIFE ALONG THE RIVER

Something that Tortoise had just said puzzled Peter.

"Freshy got stuck in the mud and stayed there," repeated he. "But Jack-in-the-Box, I should have thought, would have smothered, buried alive, in the slimy ooze. How could he breathe, or didn't he have to?"

Tortoise looked scornfully upon his companion.

"Tch! Tch! Tch! What a stupid question!" declared he. "Think it over. Two-Legs. Did you ever meet anything that walked, or crawled, or flew, or swam who lost his breath and lived very long? Of course not. Cousin Freshy breathed all right. All he had to do was to choose a mud bed near the shore, where the waters were shallow, stretch out his long, leathery neck, life his head above the ripples and gulp in the air by great mouthfuls."

At this point Tortoise thought of something and chuckled.

"One of the reasons that Freshy never had many adventures in his long life was because he was too lazy. He just couldn't bear to move once he got settled anywhere. His idea of a good time was to crawl upon a log or clamber up the bank and lie there in the sun for hours and hours."

"Goodness knows how long he would stay there without kicking a leg if nobody came along to disturb him. But, my, what a 'fraid cat he was!"

"What was he afraid of—fish?" asked Peter, and right

Reserves Weak A field And Lose Poor Contest

INDIANAPOLIS HAS EASY TIME WINNING BEFORE HUGE CROWD

Vital Pitches Well But Support Is Almost Lacking

Heavy hitting, coupled with loose fielding by the home team, gave the Indianapolis A. B. C's a 13 to 6 victory over the Reserves in the opening game of a three-game series Sunday afternoon at Washington Park.

Reserves came through with their worst fielding exhibition of the season. Thurman Wical, former Bowersville Bayfield pitcher, made his debut in the box for the Reserves, and hurled a far better game than the score would indicate. He was opposed by Miller, star Indiananapolis pitcher, who had only one bad inning, the fifth, when five runs were scored. Miller was particularly effective with men on bases and no less than eleven local players were left stranded on sacks.

Good, bad and indifferent baseball featured the contest with the last two qualities predominating. Bunting honors were even as each club manufactured eleven hits. Reserves turned in six glaring errors and the colored nine contributed two.

As an indication of what was to come, Reserves permitted the visitors to score two unearned runs in the first frame, both without the aid of a hit. Stocker was hit by a pitched ball and calmly stole second and third. Johnson allowed Duffy's easy fly to slip through his fingers and Stocker scored, the batter reaching second. Durnbaugh then made the same error on a fly by Sumner, Duffy going to third. Sumner stole second. Miller fanned and Duncan bounced to Fennell, who nipped Duffy at the plate. On the double steal, Sumner came home and Duncan got to second. Fields filed out to end the agony.

Double plays cut short Indianapolis rallies in the second and third but four more unearned runs came across in the fourth when Johnson misjudged a long fly. Fields was safe on Longnecker's error and Anderson bounced to Longnecker. With a double play in sight, the ball took a high bounce over the shortstop's head for a fluke single. Eaton was hit by a pitched ball, filling the bases. Wical put on steam and fanned both King and Stocker, but Duffy hit a powerful drive to left that Johnson became dizzy trying to catch, and the smash went for a triple, clearing the bases. Sumner scored a clean double to left center, scoring Duffy, but Miller flied out. Meanwhile Miller was setting the Reserves back with ease although showing wildness. Tangeman's double in the fourth was the first Reserve hit.

Holding a six-run lead, the visitors were sitting on top of the world so to speak, but the home nine crashed through with a five-run rally in the fifth that fell on a short of knotting the score and changed the game's complexion for a brief time. Wical led off with a single but was forced by Longnecker. Keifer hit to Miller, who threw wide to second to force Longnecker and both runners were safe. They advanced a base on a wild pitch. Conley then belted a long triple and two runs were in. Conley scored and Fennell reached first on Stocker's fumble of a ground ball. Tangeman hit a double, Fennell scoring all the way from first, and Durnbaugh kept up with a triple to right. With the tying run on third, Johnson lofted to Sumner and Weller fanned.

Sixth and seventh innings passed scoreless. A fine catch by Duncan prevented a run in the seventh. Conley led off with a single and went to second when King pegged wildly to first. Fennell hit a line drive over short but Duncan came in fast to make a startling catch and Conley was easily doubled up.

Both teams scored a run in the eighth. Duncan singled and Keifer allowed the ball to slip past him, the batter going to third. He scored on Conley's error on Anderson's sharp grounder. Reserves got this back in their half of the inning. Durnbaugh got a fluke hit over third but Johnson struck out and Weller popped to Stocker. Wical doubled along the right field foul line, scoring Durnbaugh from first. Longnecker singled to right, Wical stopping at third, but Keifer popped to Anderson.

In the ninth, Wical intentionally eased up in view of the wretched support being rendered him and Indianapolis clustered five hits, including two doubles and a triple, and an error and walk for six more tallies, putting the contest safely away. Reserves filled the bases in the last half of the inning but could not score.

Duffy, Duncan and Anderson each obtained two hits for the visiting team. Conley, Tangeman, Durnbaugh and Wical led the Reserve attack. Conley pounded out three hits, including a triple and Tangeman's contribution was a walk, two doubles and a single. Durnbaugh and Wical each hit safely twice, including a double. Miller struck out ten batters and walked five. Wical fanned four. Reserves must obtain two outfielders if they expect to make any kind of a showing in the present series, the second game of which will be played next Sunday. The largest crowd of the season was on hand to see the poorest game of the season.

DEMENTED MAN IS RETURNED TO HOME

John Brownlee, 55, Leesburg, O., believed by authorities to be demented, was returned to his home early Monday morning by the sheriff of Highland County, after being found walking aimlessly along the Cedarville and Yellow Springs Pike by Marshal Hayes McLean, Cedarville, Saturday.

The marshal notified Sheriff Ohmer Tate, who placed the man in the county jail. Questioning developed his home is in Leesburg, and the sheriff communicated with the Highland County sheriff, who came to Xenia Monday.

Brownlee wandered away from home last Wednesday. While mentally unbalanced, he was not violent, Sheriff Tate said.

WORK LAID OUT
NEWARK, Sept. 26.—Babe Ruth, still at the 56 mark, must hit one homer in each of New York's four remaining games in order to set a new home run record of 60. The Bambino and his rival, Lou Gehrig, were held to one single apiece yesterday by Earl Whitehill of the Tigers, Gehrig fanning three times.

FLYNN AND DEMPSEY FILE PROTEST WITH ILLINOIS RING BODY

CHICAGO, Sept. 26.—When the Illinois Athletic commission met in regular weekly session tomorrow, the solons will find—if the mail man has been punctual—a formal letter from Jack Dempsey and his manager, Leo P. Flynn.

The letter will demand that the decision rendered last Thursday night in the Tunney-Dempsey fight be reversed and Jack Dempsey be declared the winner by a knockout.

That such a protest has been prepared was admitted yesterday by Flynn just before Dempsey, promoter Tex Rickard and a party of friends left for New York.

Flynn made public the contents of a telegram which he said had been dispatched to the boxing commission. It read:

"My manager, Leo P. Flynn, and myself are preparing a formal protest which will arrive at your offices Tuesday morning asking you to reverse the decision and declare Jack Dempsey the winner by a knockout over Gene Tunney. (Signed) Jack Dempsey."

The petition will fall on deaf ears was indicated by John C. Righelmer, chairman of the state athletic commission, who declared that as far as the commission is concerned the fight and the decision are closed issues.

Flynn admitted he had little hope of obtaining a reversal at the hands of the state board, but declared it was necessary to be on record in order to proceed with his next move. This, he frankly stated, would be an appeal to the national board of boxing commission, with headquarters at Baltimore.

POLICEMAN SHOTS COLUMBUS YOUTH

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 26.—County and city authorities today were investigating the fatal shooting of Cornelius Mahoney, 23, who died at St. Francis Hospital, here today, after having been shot in the spine by Patrolman Dan McAllister, Sunday morning.

Mahoney was shot while seated in his automobile. According to McAllister, he had approached Mahoney's auto and ordered him to stop. Instead, the officer avers, Mahoney pulled away from the curb and appeared to be reaching for his hip. The shot paralyzed Mahoney, and the automobile continued on until it ran into a vacant lot.

McAllister had been called to the neighborhood to search for a drunk, an man, and told his superiors he was looking for a filling station attendant, after he had failed to find the intoxicated man.

ROOSEVELT BEATS OSBORN HIGH 108-0

Roosevelt High School's football team opened its season by administering an overwhelming 108 to 0 defeat upon Bath Twp. High School of Osborn Saturday at Dayton. The Redskins, outweighting and outplaying the visitors, scored an average of one touchdown every four minutes. It was the largest score ever registered by the West Siders.

Osborn attempted an aerial attack to stem the tide but found it unsuccessful. On the other hand, Roosevelt's passing attack worked to perfection.

YELLOW JACKETS SPARKLE BUT ARE DEFEATED BY ASHLAND

Cedarville College "Yellow-Jackets" covered themselves with glory although losing to the sturdy Ashland College eleven 12 to 6 in the season's opener Saturday afternoon at Ashland.

Fighting gamely against a superior team, Cedarville came back strong in the final quarter to score one touchdown and narrowly missed pushing over another to tie the score with a chance of victory.

Ashland had one of its best teams in years last season and twelve letter men, including seven regulars, are back this year. Against these odds, Cedarville, while outplayed, did well in holding the home team to such a low score.

Ashland used straight football to register one touchdown in the second quarter and another in the third period. Cedarville inaugurated a more open style of play in the fourth quarter and by a series of end runs and forward passes, marched on its own twenty-yard line within striking distance of the Ashland goal line.

Adair lugged the ball across from the eight-yard line on an end run. In the last quarter Cedarville introduced a successful aerial attack and only one in a dozen or more attempts was incomplete.

Near the close of the game, the Yellow-Jackets started another march for the goal that ended on the Ashland eight-yard line. Ashland received the benefit of a disputed decision at this point. Cedarville lost the ball with three minutes to play when the referee decided an Ashland player had recovered a fumble. Cedarville protested but possession of the ball was lost and with it the visiting team's final scoring chance.

Adair performed brilliantly at half and turned the ends for nice gains on many occasions. Captain Nagley also did everything expected of a field general. Cedarville will meet Antioch College's Division A grid team at Yellow Springs Tuesday afternoon, the game starting at probably 2:30 o'clock. As the two colleges are traditional rivals, an interesting game is promised.

DEMPSEY WOULD BE CHAMP IF FIGHT WAS STAGED IN NEW YORK

By DAVIS J. WALSH
NEW YORK, Sept. 26.—Regardless of whether Referee Dave Barry counted too much or too little or just enough or not at all, the following fact was a stand out in the Dempsey-Tunney situation today: That Jack Dempsey probably would be the heavyweight champion of the world once more if the bout had been fought in New York instead of Chicago.

This is not offered in a spirit of criticism of Chicago's system or its integrity, both of which are beyond reproach. Chicago's system merely is different from that of New York, or at least it seems to be. Anyhow, the former appears to give the break to the man on the floor; the latter to the man on his feet.

As soon as a man goes down in a New York ring, the timekeeper arises and begins pounding the count on the canvas with a mallet. The referee, meanwhile, busies himself with the matter of ushering the other fighter to a neutral corner. This done, he returns to the fallen man, picks up the count at the point where it may be and tolls on to ten or to the point where the man decides to forsake the perpendicular.

In other words, only ten seconds can elapse between the neutral knockdown and the actual knock-out, with this lone exception: That in case the man scoring the knock-down leaves the neutral corner before the completion of the count, it is stopped immediately. When the man returns to the corner, the count is resumed at the point where it was stopped.

Leo P. Flynn says the rules in New York and Chicago on knock-downs are almost identical. If that is true, then Tunney was counted out and Dempsey should be counted champion now and immediately. However, I have listened to Mr. Flynn say things all my life and a dispassionate check-up has shown that at least five times out of a hundred he is right.

This, of course, may be an occasion that falls within the minority one-twentieth. Still, I say the Chicago system worked twice that night—once in the big fight and again in a "mug" bout that followed. In the latter instance, the timekeeper had counted three when he noted that the referee was having trouble in making the other man go away from there. When everything was straightened out, they started the count all over again at "one."

But, as Flynn pointed out, the system did not run one hundred per cent through the evening. When Tunney scored his knockdown in the eighth, Barry didn't hesitate a second.

"One," he started almost while Dempsey was in midair. I guess the boy forgot his text book that time. However, when you get right down to it, the loss of the fight must be laid at Dempsey's door, not at the referee's, nor the timekeeper's, nor at Tunney's least of all.

The latter was quite right within his rights all the way. He was waiting for the referee to say "nine" and, when he did, Tunney

EXPERT HERE
F. H. Seeley, of Chicago and Philadelphia, the noted expert, will himself personally be at the Miami Hotel, and will remain in Dayton this Thursday only, Sept. 29, from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. Mr. Seeley says: "The Spermatic Shield will not only retain any case of rupture perfectly, but contracts the opening in 10 days on the average case. Being the vast advantage over all former methods—employing instantaneous effects immediately appreciable and without anesthesia or position no matter the size or location. Large or difficult cases, or incisional rupture (following operations) specially solicited. This instrument received the only award in England and in Spain, producing results without surgery, injections, medical treatments or prescriptions."
CAUTION—All cases should be cautioned against the use of any elastic or web truss with understraps, as same rest where the lump is and not where the opening is. Enclosing communications necessitating surgical operations, Mr. Seeley has documents from the United States Government, Washington, D. C., for inspection. He will be glad to demonstrate without charge or fee them if desired. Business demands prevent stopping at any other place in this section.

Farm Notes

IMPROVE MARKETING Livestock co-operatives, affiliated with the farm bureaus of Ohio last week started on an intensive campaign of improving co-operative marketing and purchasing service, and of telling the story of those services to additional producers of livestock, according to word received at the offices of the Greene County Farm Bureau from the offices of the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation. The campaign is being conducted through the field service department of the farm bureau organization.

The building of the co-operative marketing system in Ohio to its present status has taken nearly ten years, said F. G. Ketner, the Federation's director of livestock marketing in discussing the campaign. "Only a small percentage of the producers of livestock in the state realize the efficiency and breadth of service offered through the co-operative system. Thousands of livestock producers have helped to build up the machinery through which more than $15,000,000 worth of stock went to market last year from local stations in Ohio."

To the local co-operative marketing work has been added farm representation, through farmer-owned commission firms on the important markets to which Ohio livestock moves, according to Ketner's statement. Marketing work was further improved by the establishment of an order buying agency which last year sold twenty-two of every hundred co-operatively marketed hogs directly to packers from country points, he says.

"Only this year have we perfected the system of supplying Ohio livestock men with feeder livestock for their feed lots," says Mr. Ketner. Contact with nearly every source of supply brings fresh feed or stock at the lowest possible cost from range or western market.

U. S. Senator from Virginia Claude Augustus Swanson was born at Swansonsville, Pennsylvania County, Virginia, March 31, 1862. He was graduated from Randolph-Macon College in 1885, receiving his law degree from the University of Virginia a year later. Swanson began his law practice at Chatham, Virginia. He first went to the lower house of Congress in 1893, and resigned to become governor of Virginia in 1906. In 1910 he was appointed to fill an unexpired term in the United States Senate, and has served continuously since that time. His home is at Chatham, Virginia.

Congress at the coming session should effect a reduction in the taxes of between $400,000,000 and $500,000,000. The revenues are sufficient to justify it. It is useless to consider the estimates of the treasury in the consideration of tax reduction, as the treasury always has mislaid us and the surplus has always proved approximately double that estimate by the treasury.

We have reduced the public debt not by economics, but by exorbitant collections of taxes far in excess of the requirements of the government. The government can now afford to reduce the taxes and retire the public debt from year to year under the requirements of the sinking fund provisions. This would retire the public debt in ample time and give relief to all classes of business, trade and industry and to the people at large. The taxes now are passed on to the people in the form of higher prices of goods sold.

There was no necessity of increasing the corporation tax in the last congress. They should be cut. Relief should be given to many small, hard-pressed corporations. A large part of business now is done by the smaller corporations owned and controlled by the masses of the people.

The nuisance and war emergency taxes should be repealed and there should be a substantial reduction of the income tax between the $10,000 and $50,000 brackets in the income tax law, on which there have been practically no reductions in laws recently enacted by Congress.

I hope that the Democrats will prepare a measure giving substantial tax reduction and present it to congress, not as a partisan measure but as one based on economic principles. The tax reduction is the only way to get the country back on its feet.

The Theater

Almost every dramatic actress, at some time or other, has cherished a secret ambition to portray the title role of "Camille" that famous classic of Alexander Dumas, Jr., which became the best known vehicle of Sarah Bernhardt, and Eleanore Duse, in almost every city of the world.

And now Norma Talmadge, so frequently referred to as "the" emotional actress of the screen, has realized such an ambition in the completion of her modern picture version of "Camille" which comes to the Bijou Monday and Tuesday.

In later years, in addition to the performances of two immortals,

Elsie Janis, stage star, accused by a Hollywood dressmaker of failing to pay for a pair of pajamas and a chiffon slip. A suit is threatened

ROMANY ROMANCE PALLS AND MOTHER AND SON QUIT GYPSIES

MRS. NINA HILTON AND HER SON, HARRISON.

BY DAVID H. GLICKMAN,
Staff Writer for Central Press and
The Gazette.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Sept. 25.—Romany romance may be alluring when viewed from the safe harbor of home, but in reality, well, eating rice three times a day somehow takes the verve out of gypsy life.

At least Mrs. Nina Hilton discovered this when she sailed with a company of 200 gypsies, bound for South America.

She fancied gypsy life to be as charming as its music is sweet. That, of course, was when she was living sheltered and protected with her husband, Fred, and her 9-year-old son, Schooler Harrison, in their easy little home.

Signed as interpreter.

A gypsy troupe lived in the same vicinity and Mrs. Hilton couldn't resist the call of romance. She signed on to act as interpreter for the band when they landed in Valparaiso. Then one night, with her son, she stole away to the gypsy rendezvous.

Moreover, when Mrs. Hilton and her son, Schooler, embarked, they had no money. That was to be provided for by the Romany ravers. In order to appear more like gypsies, the pair boarded the liner under the romantic names of Mrs. Anna de Floris Johnson and Tony No Money Forthcoming.

The promised money wasn't forthcoming, Mrs. Hilton declared. And gypsies weren't nearly as pleasant and respectful as she thought they should be. A radio-gram to the American vice-consul at Manzanillo, on the west coast of Mexico, explained her plight.

When the ship docked at Manzanillo, the disillusioned Mrs. Hilton and her small son were set ashore, and promptly headed toward San Francisco on the first liner available.

Mrs. Hilton and young Harrison have definitely abandoned the gypsy trail, they have announced.

WILD CANARY EARNS BREAK-FAST

YOSEMITE, Cal.—F. A. Nief, manager of Camp Curry, reports that every morning at 9 o'clock, when he sits down to his breakfast in the garden, a wild canary, which he named Tillie, sits on the edge of his table and picks raisins out of his buns. As a reward for such breakfast Tillie sings at the top of her voice a morning solo and then both part for their respective business of the day.

LADY CALLED FATE

JOHN MOORE, New York business man, goes to Tucson, Ariz., on business, expecting to return to New York the next day. He meets a college associate, Philip Morton, who has business in Mexico. Both drink heavily of tequila and in the subsequent mixup in identity Moore finds himself in Mexico, while Morton, presumably, is in New York. Moore has in his possession a portrait of a girl which had been Morton's. He is met by the Senorita's ambassador, Ramon, who tells him he is to meet her at the church at Tubutama. The girl's name is Ruth Henshaw. Moore tells her that he is not Morton. He meets Clench, who has been annoying Ruth.

CHAPTER TWELVE.

"At train time Morton was dead drunk, and they put him, I feel sure, on that east-bound train in my place. I was nearly as drunk as Morton but I could still walk and I walked myself into what I thought was a taxi bound for the railroad station. Early this morning I woke up in Sasabe. "Sasabe! Pedro brought you! Why didn't you go back to Tucson?" John shook his head slightly. "I met the Ambassador," he said. "Ramon! But—but—" protested the girl with rising excitement. "I sent him to see Mr. Morton." "He thought I was Morton." "You did not deceive him?" "No. At first, it never occurred to me that he thought I was Morton." "But afterwards—" Ruth demanded. John hesitated. How could he tell her in a few words all the reasons why he had not enlightened the Ambassador as to his own identity? He could not tell her that Morton was—what he was. "Ramon worked on your sympathy about me," Ruth said hotly. "He is very much to blame for this! I trusted him!"

"Look here, Miss Henshaw, you are not to blame the Ambassador. To the very best of his ability he obeyed your instructions."

"He did not!" flashed the girl. "I sent him with a message he was to deliver to Mr. Morton." "Ah!" commented John dryly. "He understood that he was to use his own judgment as to whether he should deliver your message or not."

"Yes. That was my plan," Ruth admitted coldly.

"Your plan?" exclaimed John Moore with much energy that he startled her. "Your plan! You made a plan; so did Ramon; so did Morton; and so did I. Which plan succeeded? None of them. For this reason or that all of our plans went a little askew. But I am beginning to see that all of the incidents that upset our several plans fitted together into another plan."

"Whose plan?" demanded Ruth thoughtfully.

"Call it Fate," said John Moore.

"Absurd!" commented the girl.

"No it isn't," contradicted John.

"This morning I began to suspect it; now, I know it."

"You cannot know it," returned Ruth.

"Certainly I can! Ramon knew it, too."

"Ramon did?"

"I am sure he did," replied John, earnestly. "He seemed so sure that he knew all about me that I asked him if he knew as much about the man who nearly came instead of me."

"I know just how you feel," soothed

"Ramon worked on your sympathy about me," Ruth said hotly.

It was, I thought, fine sarcasm on my part. It never fazed the Ambassador. He only said, "I know de senorita need you an' you come!" Ramon knew."

The girl lifted her chin a little and stared past John. "I have no doubt," said she, with elaborate indifference, "that you meant well. But Mr. Morton would have served my plan while you do not." She waited for John's quick retort, but it did not come. Silence reigned in the belfry; a silence which deepened until the little breeze stealing in from the pepper trees and the golden notes dancing in the sunlight seemed to mock it. A moment passed. The silence grew poignant to the girl. Why, O, why had she been quite so rude? The man was a gentleman and had been very polite. Of course she had been right in putting an end to this nonsense about Fate, but she need not have entirely crushed him like this. Evidently he could say nothing; she must. "You must not think—" she began and looked up at him.

"The look—very like tenderness—" with which he was regarding her, vanished quickly, but his grin—and actually there was no other word for it—broadened until he laughed aloud.

"You cannot fight Fate," he said, soothly, as if to a child.

"Oh," gasped Ruth. "Oh!" She longed to stamp her foot at him.

"Oh, but I can! This is all perfectly absurd! I do not know you and you do not know me! It is absurd!"

"I know just how you feel," soothed

John, still grinning. "I felt that way myself this morning. At one time I even grew nearly as excited as you in protesting that I did not know you. But it did no good. Ramon reminded me—" he paused.

"Of what?" asked Ruth as if against her will.

"He reminded me," said John gravely, "that I was wearing your picture over my heart."

"My picture?" Ruth breathed. "But that isn't possible."

"Look at it." Deliberately John drew the picture from his breast pocket and held it so that she might see it. "I had never seen you, nor heard your name; yet I was wearing this picture—as Ramon said. Do you begin to see how everything fits together?"

"That picture has stood on my uncle's desk for a year. How did you get it?" The girl was rather subdued with bewilderment.

"I took it from a man I felt sure had no right to have it. You did not give it to Morton, did you?"

"No, no! How did he get it?"

"I do not know. Perhaps we shall find that out," said John a trifle grimly.

"You took it from him—" Ruth was thinking aloud, intently. "What was he doing with it?"

"Nothing that matters," answered John. "All that counts really is that my having it, this morning, conquered me; just as it has conquered you now."

"But it has not," asserted the girl.

"Give me the picture, please."

Reluctantly John released the picture. "All right," he sighed. "But I have an idea that Ramon will think less of me. However—now we know where we are. We can lay our campaign against this Rodriguez chap."

"No, no. You said you had to be in New York on the thirtieth—"

"No, I didn't," interrupted John. "I said I thought—last night—that I had to be there. I have learned a lot of things since then."

"Oh," pleaded the girl. "You must not go on with this, Mr. Moore."

John smiled down at her. "You know I am going on with this," he said quietly.

"Seriously—I cannot let you."

"You cannot stop me," smiled John.

"But don't you see," urged Ruth, "when it was Mr. Morton who was coming down here on his own business, anyway, it was one thing. But I cannot let you upset all your plans for something which is probably all in my imagination. Oh, I am sorry I told you about it!"

"You are not sorry you told me about it," said John almost sternly, "and you know in your heart, just as I do, that this thing is bigger—and more important than any plans of either yours or mine. We are going to see it through. Afterwards—you need not worry about afterwards. That responsibility is mine. For the rest of it; I came on from Sasabe of my own volition; I am going through with it upon my own determination. Unless—" and he spoke very slowly, "unless you tell me that you will not trust me as Ramon trusted me."

"Oh, but I do," protested the girl quickly. "It isn't that—"

"Then that's that," broke in John gaily. "Now! What do you know of this deal of Morton's?"

"Nothing, really. There you see. And the first word you utter will give it all away even though they don't know you. It can't be done."

"Wait a minute. Do you mean that none of them knows Morton?" John was eager.

"None of them has ever seen him."

"Then it is easy! All I have to do is to let them fool themselves. You see I've an idea that the harder I tell them I am John Moore the harder they will think me Philip Morton."

"But—but—" began Ruth.

"No 'buts'!" John told her, smiling. "We will go back to the car. No need of trying to fool Pedro now that Clench has seen us together. We will take Clench along with us to keep him out of mischief. Are you ready for a trip to the moon?"

"The moon!"

"Well," John shrugged. "I have discovered today that with Fate at the helm one never knows what may happen!"

Ruth drew a deep breath. "It is all rather amazing, isn't it? Let's hope we don't fall your goddess."

"Good girl!" John smiled over her as he had exulted in the plaza. "With both of us helping her this is going to be a lark!"

"Rodriguez is a dangerous man, Mr. Moore."

"Is he?" John asked and smiled.

"And Clench would stab you in the back if he dared. And my uncle and Manuel—"

"Quite a flock of them, aren't there?" commented John, happily, as she paused. "All right. We will take them all on—and I—together!"

due to some sort of an infection similar to chicken pox. It has also been found often to be associated with pyorrhea and bad tonsils, so it would look as though some cases were due to poisons from diseases elsewhere in the body. However, we always must hold this thought in mind. Usually before an infection can take place (unless the infection germs are so very virulent or in large enough numbers) there is something that has made the tissues lose their resisting powers, and you should find out what that factor is and remedy it.

The infection of shingles follows the nerves and all the tissues of the body are profoundly affected by incorrect diets.

Influenza

C. wants to know if it is true that the largest percentage of cases of influenza eventually die of tuberculosis?

While it is true that influenza or other infectious diseases weaken the resistance so that tuberculosis may be more easily contracted (or, if already present, may become active), it is not true that those who have had influenza eventually die of tuberculosis. If it were, most of us would be dead by now. Certainly an enormous number had influenza during epidemic. Yes, I had it, too. And you should see me now! I certainly don't look tubercular!

TRENCH FOOT.

H. is suffering from what he calls "trench foot," which he acquired while in service in France. His feet crack and burn terribly. Will I explain the cause and cure? I don't find anything in the H-bary or files about trench foot, H, but I do find something about trench fever, which is a specific infection transmitted by the bite of the body louse and its excretions. This is a war disease, and while it is not fatal, the sickness caused from it, so Rosenau says in his Preventive Medicine and Hygiene, exceeded that of any other disease on the western front in the World War.

The prevention of the trench fever depends primarily upon the attack against lice, and disinfection of the urine, sputum and other secretions from the patient. In the description of the fever, Rosenau states that the cases usually recover fully, but there are a certain number who pass into a chronic state, and suffer with pains in the legs, arms, head, and have a tendency to excessive sweating. The tendency to excessive sweating of your feet may be what causes your trouble, H. Perhaps a solution to prevent this may remedy it. Try one made of one ounce of formalin to the quart of water. Wash the feet with soap and water thoroughly, twice a day. After drying apply a little of the solution and rub it in. After it is dry, sprinkle a little talcum powder or Do this every day for a week or so, then perhaps once a week will be sufficient. Change your socks every day.

I hope this will help you. But you should see a physician anyway. H. If you don't know any in your locality, ring up your County

HALITOSIS? KILL IT!

Seven times in ten, Halitosis is due to a sour, gassy stomach, caused by intestinal stasis, or "Constipation." People with halitosis (unpleasant breath) are shunned, avoided, because they are like a "plague"—friends just can't endure being near such a person. Old and young, rich and poor, none escape if fermented food remains in the body more than 24 hours. Even if the bowels move daily, there is often a remnant of foul, decaying matter that can only be removed with a thorough cleansing, such as Black-burn's Casa-Royal Pills. Produce. This sweet little pill is "Better than Castor Oil!"

Its action is pleasant and prompt. Stomach, liver, spleen and intestines all are benefited. The effect is so different from ordinary laxatives, salts, calomel, etc. A smooth, abundant action from the very first dose, soon ridges you of all the disagreeable symptoms.

Tomatoes and Shingles

L. wants to know if acid fruits such as tomatoes will cause shingles?

It is not known what the cause of shingles is, L., but we certainly believe that the tomato is absolutely innocent.

You speak of tomatoes as an acid fruit. While they are acid to the taste, they are alkaline in their final reaction in the body and are a most wholesome food, for they are high in vitamins and their acidity seems to preserve the vitamins even when they are canned, cooked or dried.

Some people have what is known as an idiosyncrasy or supersensitiveness of certain foods; that is they cause some skin or other disturbance in them which is not usual. Of course if you had this supersensitiveness to tomatoes you might think of some connections with any skin eruption.

Back to shingles again: The belief is growing among the skin specialists that shingles may be
